GUNMEN FIRE ON BELFAST FUNERAL PROCESSION

TROOPS AGAIN CALLED OUT

MANY HURT IN YORK STREET RIOTING

Belfast, July 16.

There have been further grave disturbances, more bloodshed and rioting here, sequel to the clashes of last Saturday and Sunday when five were killed following a parade commemorating the Battle of the Boyne. Troops have once again been called into action.

This latest disorder came when hidden marksmen fired on the funeral procession which was carrying the coffin of the men killed in the earlier fighting.

It was an amazing and distressing scene. The huge procession was passing through the notorious York Street when shots came from the concealed gunmen. The crowd spotted their hiding-place, however, and made a rush upon the building on whose roof and in whose windows they had their stations.

What went on in the building it is impossible to ascertain. Whether the crowd caught any of the gunmen is not known.

A strong detachment of the Border Regiment, which saw fighting Sunday, was rushed to the area. With fixed bayonets, supported by extra police, they came at the double from their lorries. They fought off the mob which was milling around the snipers' refuge. Ambulance men carried off a number of wounded youths. Police then drove into the crowd in "cage" cars and made room for the fire brigade which hurried to the scene when clouds of smoke were seen rising from two buildings. The crowd had set alight to them believing them to conceal snipers.

LOYAL CROWD
While the firemen worked, and police and soldiers searched for riflemen, the crowd stood in the street and sang "God Save the King" at the top of its voice. An armoured car stood at one end of the street, its machine guns trained over the heads of the people upon windows which might suddenly frame a gunman. The authorities are prepared for any emergency and the troops are making a diligent search for gunmen over the roofs of the houses and buildings in the locality. It is believed that a strong display of force has quelled any further possibility of disturbances.—Reuter.

SIR JOHN SIMON'S REVIEW

PROTECTION OF PUBLIC

London, July 16.

In the House of Commons, the Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, touched upon a great variety of subjects in reviewing the work of the Home Office, a vote for which he recalled having last presented in the House 20 years ago. He spoke encouragingly of the development of methods of dealing with juvenile crime embodied in recent legislation and extended by the Children and Young Persons Act of 1933. The Act had strengthened the law for dealing with the neglected child, and if the problem of neglect could be adequately dealt with, the amount of juvenile delinquency would certainly be diminished.

Referring to the reorganisation of the police, Sir John Simon paid a tribute to Lord Trenchard, Chief Commissioner of Police. There were 180 separate Police Forces in England and Wales, and it was important to get close co-operation

LABOURS FOR PEACE

AVENOL WORKING IN PARIS

ITALY PAYS NO HEED

Paris, July 16.

The Council of the League of Nations is expected to be summoned in the beginning of August to discuss the Abyssinian dispute. This intimation was given by M. Joseph Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who first visited the Quai d'Orsay and then the Abyssinian Minister.

Meanwhile, despatches from Rome indicate that Italy is rushing fighting power into Africa as fast as her transport can accommodate it.

Three hundred more fighting planes, mainly bombers, are leaving shortly for North Africa under command of General Bal. Under-Secretary for War. Italy already has 100 planes in her African colonies of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

It is understood that Signor Mussolini is counting upon his Air Force to overwhelm the Abyssinians swiftly and he will probably open his campaign against them with a mass attack in order to intimidate the populace and disorganise the Abyssinian army.—Reuter.

MORE PLANES LEAVE

Naples, July 16.

The aircraft carrier, Miraglia, with 21 planes, and 80 airmen aboard, has left for Massawa. Two troopships left here for North African ports yesterday. Six further troopships are at present loading. They will sail immediately.—Reuter.

between these Forces for many purposes. A great deal was being done to enlighten science on the side of crime fighting.

The Jubilee review of the Police Forces by the King next Sunday was a reminder to the British public of the reason it had to be proud of this great civil force, which had won for British police a reputation abroad, as well as at home, for coolness, courtesy and good temper.

Sir John Simon mentioned figures in the annual report of the Chief Inspector of Factories bearing on the extent of accidents among young persons, and said the true solution was to be found in education in safety among boys and girls as a result of voluntary efforts undertaken with the goodwill of employers, workers and others.—British Wireless.

Japanese General Dismissed

MINISTRY SEEKS FIRM CONTROL

Tokyo, July 16.

A sensation has been caused throughout the country by the dismissal of General Jinzaburo Mazaki, Inspector-General of Military Training, one of the highest posts on the General Staff.

The War Minister's action in removing General Mazaki is believed to be the first step in a determination to reassert control over the Army, particularly the Kwantung section in Manchukuo and North China.

This section has maintained a rather independent attitude since 1931, owing to the activities of the so-called Young Clique, consisting of Chiefs of Staff and Military Attaches.

The Emperor has approved sweeping changes and promotions affecting several thousand officers. These measures aim at strengthening the unity of the Army.—Reuter.

Urge Bigger Fighting Air Force In U.S.

700 MORE PLANES REQUIRED

INAUGURATING CAMPAIGN

Washington, July 16.

The Military Committee of the House of Representatives following a lengthy secret conference with the Secretary for War, Mr. George H. Dern, and other high officials of the War Department, decided to commence a campaign for an enlarged Air Force.

The Committee will attempt to persuade Congress to allot $40,000,000 for the construction of between 600 and 800 additional fighting planes.

It is stated that the object in this increase in the building programme is to establish once again the fighting efficiency of the Army Air Corps which, it is feared, has suffered recently.

The War Department told the Committee that it needed 700 planes to bring the Army Air Corps up to the strength recommended by the recent Board of Investigation.—Reuter.

BIG SAVINGS IN MANY SPHERES

Paris, July 16.

Following the longest Cabinet meeting since the War, lasting over fourteen hours, the Government today decided to issue twenty decrees effecting savings of 7,000,000,000 francs in the national budget plus 1,400,000,000 francs in communal budgets and 2,000,000,000 francs in railways.

It will also issue eight decrees relieving and stimulating national economy.—Reuter.

CONSERVATIVE LOSS AT W. TOXTETH

SHRINKAGE OF VOTES

London, July 16.

The bye-election in the West Toxteth division of Liverpool, caused by the appointment of the former Conservative member, Mr. C. T. Wilson, as a Stipendiary Magistrate, has resulted in a Labour gain. The result was as follows:

Mr. J. Gibbons (Lab.) 11,908

Mr. Cremllyn (Con.) 9,565

Labour majority 2,343

At the last General Election, in 1931, there was a straight fight between Mr. Wilson (Conservative) and Mr. Gibbons (Labour), the former being returned with a majority of 5,635. Prior to that, Mr. Gibbons had represented the division since 1924, his majority in 1929 being 3,679, while in 1929 he had a majority of 379.

The new member is Secretary of the Liverpool branch of the Boller-makers' Society.

At yesterday's voting, there was an unusually small poll, only 24,473 votes being registered, compared with 35,591 at the last General Election. The Labour vote has increased by 70, whilst the Conservative poll shows a shrinkage of 11,048.—Reuter.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FLEET REVIEWED

STRIKING SCENES OFF SPITHEAD

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 17, 8.30 a.m.)

ABOARD H.M.S. ROYAL SOVEREIGN, July 16.

In blazing sunshine, traditional "King's weather," His Majesty to-day stood on the bridge of the royal yacht, the Victoria and Albert, and with three of his sons took the salute of Britain's mighty war fleet off Spithead.

An area of eleven square miles was filled with an orderly array of 157 warships and one hundred other gaily beflagged vessels.

His Majesty the King, with a keen naval-trained eye, swept the review as the royal yacht steamed through the avenues of grey, low-lying hulls, while the ships' companies manned the warships' sides and cheered lustily, and the roaring planes of the Fleet Air Arm dived low in salute.

It was an Imperial occasion. The Duke of Gloucester saluted his father as the King's yacht steamed past the cruiser Australia, one of the vessels of the fleet of the far Dominion.

India was represented by the sloop Indus, future flagship of the Royal Indian Navy. Canadian, New Zealand and South African officers were among the Grand Fleet's personnel.

Unprecedentedly large crowds lined miles of the sea-front and remained until after nightfall for the searchlight display and illumination of the Fleet. It was a striking display.

To-morrow His Majesty, aboard the Victoria and Albert, will lead the Fleet into mimic battle.—Reuter Special.

STUPENDOUS DISPLAY

Portsmouth, July 16.

Wearing undress naval uniform and looking keen and fit, His Majesty the King stood on the bridge of the Royal Yacht, Victoria and Albert, when she left Portsmouth this afternoon to begin the great review of the Fleet.

As the yacht steamed out of the harbour His Majesty saw the long lines of his battle fleet stretching away into the distance, and the hosts of pleasure craft and merchant vessels scattered to the horizon. Hundreds of thousands watched the royal yacht's progress.

Before starting the review the King assumed command of his Fleet. Three of his sailor sons, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and the Duke of Kent, stood beneath the Victoria and Albert's bridge. The Duke of Gloucester watched for the King's coming from the cruiser Australia.

THUNDEROUS SALUTE

It was a grand spectacle when eighteen capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers fired a royal salute of twenty-one guns. And as the thunder of their firing rolled away, and the smoke of the explosions cleared, first in a thin stream of sound, then in swelling volume, the music of "God Save the King" came rolling from the sea, played by the bands of 100 warships.

Along the decks of the fighting craft long lines of Marines and bluejackets stood at the "present" and the sun glistened on the burnished bayonets.

After the royal yacht had reached her moorings, the King held a reception in tribute to the democracy of the sea. His Majesty received alike the commanders of famous liners and the skippers of the fishing trawlers. Commodores of famous passenger liners and (Continued on Page 7.)

Charles Laughton's Narrow
EscapeJANET GAYNOR
INJURED

Charles Laughton, the actor, had a narrow escape from drowning in the sea, near Hollywood, while taking part in a film.

Production was in progress on board a ship, off the Isthmus of Santa Catalina Island, while a big sea was running, and the ship was suddenly thrown heavily by the swell.

Laughton, who at that moment, in the role of captain, was bellowing orders to his men in the rigging, was thrown from his feet and sent rolling across the deck and over the side of the ship, where a portion of railing had been removed.

Fortunately the actor fell on to a platform built out over the water for the camera crew, and one of the technicians caught him and saved him. Beyond a few bruises he was not injured.

JANET GAYNOR'S FALL

While chasing a colt during a scene from "Way Down East," which is being filmed at Santa Cruz, Janet Gaynor, the film actress, tripped and fell, then fainted. Suffering from slight concussion, and an unspecified internal injury, she was ordered to remain in bed for a week.

COLLEEN MOORE'S DIVORCE
PLEAColleen Moore, the film actress, has filed an action for divorce from her husband, Mr. Albert Parker Scott, the New York broker, says Reuter from Los Angeles. She charges him with a harsh attitude and "systematic avoidance."

Colleen Moore, who is 33, married Mr. Scott in February, 1932. She entered films as long ago as 1917, with a contract in the old Griffith Fine Arts Company. She has played in more recent times in "Lilac Time," "The Power and the Glory," and "The Social Register."

Her hobbies are yachting, fishing, and a doll's house, for which she has collected furnishings from all over the world.

CONTINENTAL STAR

The services of the noted Continental stage and film star, Liane Haid, have been secured for the forthcoming A.T.P. production "Whom the Gods Love," based on the life of Mozart.

Basil Dean, John Loder, Victoria Hopper, and Stephen Haggard will soon be leaving London for Vienna, where, with the co-operation of the Austrian authorities, many of the scenes will be shot.

Austrian by birth, Liane Haid has many times starred on her native stage and in both Austrian and German films. She acted in British films in the silent days.

GARIBALDI FILM

One of the most important productions in the current Paramount schedule will be a picture based on the life of Garibaldi, the great Italian hero.

The studio has employed E. Alexander Powell, war correspondent, intelligence officer, historian, and an authority on Garibaldi, to prepare the screen play.

No player has been chosen for the title role, although Tulio Car-

IN NATURAL COLOUR

All made of String! String in its natural colour, or in any bright shade, is crocheted and knitted into various things this season. Here you see a beret, a halo cap, a necklace, a pochette, a buttonhole, and brown crepe, worn with beige gloves.

FASHION NOTES

MANY dresses still show the high neckline. At the back the line in some cases is a sharp V, a very low V. There are many sailor collars to be seen, many bertha and some wide, round Eton collars.

Some coats have practically no collars, and some have collars that are upstanding about three inches at the back.

Lapels on coats are much wider, often faced with the lining of the coat or the fabrics of the blouse beneath the coat.

Coat and dress backs are very full as a rule. Sometimes the fullness starts at the nape of the neck, in gathers and pleats, sometimes from a yoke.

Skirts are of every kind and every variety—straight and slit, very full, circular, or pleated on a yoke.

Sometimes the fullness is all the way round, and to top this kind of skirt there is usually a light-fitting bodice with a high neckline and buttoned down the front, and long, tight-fitting sleeves.

Sleeves are either very full, bell, puffed, gathered, varying in length from just above the elbow to just above the wrist.

Millinery

Hats have undergone an important change this season. There are three schools of thought, one which still sets the hat on the head with a forward tilt towards the left side; another, whose hats are all worn at the back of the head; and the third, worn straight on the head.

NO "WAR TRUST"

QUAKER'S DENIALS TO COMMISSIONFACTORIES IN HIGHLANDS

A Quaker, Mr. J. T. Walton Newbold, gave evidence before the Royal Commission on the Private Manufacture of, and Trade in, Arms, at Middlesex Guildhall, recently.

Mr. Newbold said that he spoke as a private citizen who had made a study of the problem in all its manifold ramifications at home and abroad for a period of 23 years.

Detailed studies had compelled him to reject the theory that the manufacturers of war material were in any serious sense contributors to the promotion of war scares. Research had upset in his mind the earlier impression of the existence of a "war trust."

"I can hand in to you," said Mr. Newbold, "the reports of the case tried in the Imperial Courts of Japan about 1910 regarding an Admiral who was found guilty of taking bribes from the shipyard manager at Harrow-in-Furness of Vickers (Limited). It is the only proven case of bribery which I have ever been able to find out."

"It showed that whatever were the close relations required by His Majesty's Admiralty and War Department to be maintained here at home between Vickers and Armstrong-Whitworth & Co., they were most fiercely competing in Japan. It was not a case of bribing to get a battleship built, but of bribing to get the contract away from a rival British firm."

Speaking of newspapers, Mr. Newbold said it was his impression not that the newspapers which advocated the increase of aeroplanes or the peace ballot were disinterested, but that they published very little which would not attract and retain customers.

VERY LITTLE VALUE

"Except for those newspapers which publish special supplements and have a wide sale abroad, the custom of the arms manufacturers in their new role of advertisers is of very little value."

Mr. Newbold drew the Commission's attention to the fact that a considerable part of the armament plant in this country was located in areas vulnerable to air attack. There was need for an immense overhaul of the existing means of manufacture. He doubted whether the capital would be made available by the money market for the transfer of plant and labour to the West Coast in other areas beyond Birmingham and Sheffield. For commercial demands, the existing equipment was at least adequate, but the peril of explosions caused by aerial attacks required that a non-economic reserve of plants should be provided.

"Factories with the machinery already in, waiting only the movement into them of workers from the nearest centres by rail, road, and motor bus, should be provided in every Pampine dale, in every Scottish Glen, and in every Welsh valley at once," he said.

Sir Philip Gibbs (a member of the Commission) asked Mr. Newbold whether he thought there was nothing in the nature of an "arms ring" in existence.

Mr. Newbold replied that he thought probably the authorities preferred the closest collaboration in tackling matters between firms in certain lines of the manufacture.

The Chairman—Can you give us any information as to whether there is any international ring today of armaments manufacturers, or of firms producing the essential materials of armament construction?—I would say there is no world ring. There are certain signs of local rings.

WOMAN DIES AFTER RIOTOUS ASSEMBLY

Exciting scenes marked the conclusion of a Fascist meeting at Bootle, near Liverpool, when a woman collapsed and died in the crowd. She was Mrs. Frances Evans (48), of Seaforth Street, Bootle, mother of seven children. She had gone to the meeting, which was in the open air in Church View, near her home, in order to fetch four of her children. She joined the crowd and there were lively scenes and some disturbances at question time. As the Fascists went to their van at the close, Mrs. Evans was found on the ground, and immediately a cry went up from the crowd.

The crowd rushed at the van as it went away, and followed it to the Fascist headquarters in Strand Road. Within a few minutes every window in the building had been smashed by stones.

Police arrived in motor cars and cleared the crowd, but early this morning groups of people remained discussing the affair near the house of the dead woman.

ALIENS IN AMERICA

OLD AGE PENSION

Washington.

Senate legislative attorneys announced recently that aliens would be taxed the same as others and would be eligible to receive federal old age pensions under the Administration's Social Security programme as now drafted.

The federal system would not become effective until about five years after passage of the legislation.

State pension programmes, under which the federal government would contribute to old age funds, would start operating soon after approval of the law by President Roosevelt. Under this system States could determine their own eligibility requirements and could make non-citizenship a cause for refusing pensions.

Under the proposed permanent federal pension system, wages would be taxed and the amounts paid to a worker in his old age would depend on the amount he and his employer had contributed through taxes. Administration experts who assisted in drafting the programme explained they felt no distinction should be made between citizens because if aliens were excluded it would tend to encourage companies to employ alien labour.

which Mrs. Evans was taken, a reporter was informed that there were no external marks of violence on the woman. It is understood that she died from natural causes, and a further examination is to be made.

When Mrs. Evans was found lying in the crowd, her husband, realising her serious condition, went for a priest, who attended her.

MAKING FITTER BRITAIN

NATIONAL PHYSICAL TRAINING PLAN

JUBILEE TRUST ASSISTED

Eminent medical men, a former headmaster of Harrow, and representatives of practically every youth organisation in the country are to serve on the Central Council of Recreative Physical Training, which has been formed in an effort to make a "Fitter Britain."

The King and Queen have consented to give their patronage, and Viscount Astor is president, while the Board of Education is closely to co-operate with the Council.

A brief announcement of the formation of the Council was made in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. H. Ramsbotham, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, who said it was entirely non-official. Later a statement was issued by the Board.

Physical training—to assist Jubilee Trust—organisers, sports leaders, and others connected with voluntary organisations in all parts of the country have been approached with regard to the survey. It will be necessary to complete this in a short time, as it is intended, with the data in hand, to assist the trustees of King George's Jubilee Trust by submitting definite proposals for the co-ordination and development of recreative physical activities of young people of post-school age.

Contracts have already been made with various organisations and, through them, with hundreds of thousands engaged in some form of recreative physical training.

The object of the Central Council is to help to improve the physical and mental health of the community through the development of facilities for recreative physical activities.

It is hoped, as soon as possible, to have a headquarters and staff of men and women ready to keep in touch with groups and individuals, to assist in the organisation and extension of local branches in districts which have few facilities, and to co-operate with bodies who are already providing for the training of leaders.

The organising secretaries of the Central Council are Mr. H. A. Cole (Chief Organiser of Physical Training, Sheffield) and Miss P. S. Colson (Ling Association.)

The Council will work in the closest co-operation with the British Game and Sports Association, which represents National Games Associations as a whole and many youth organisations.

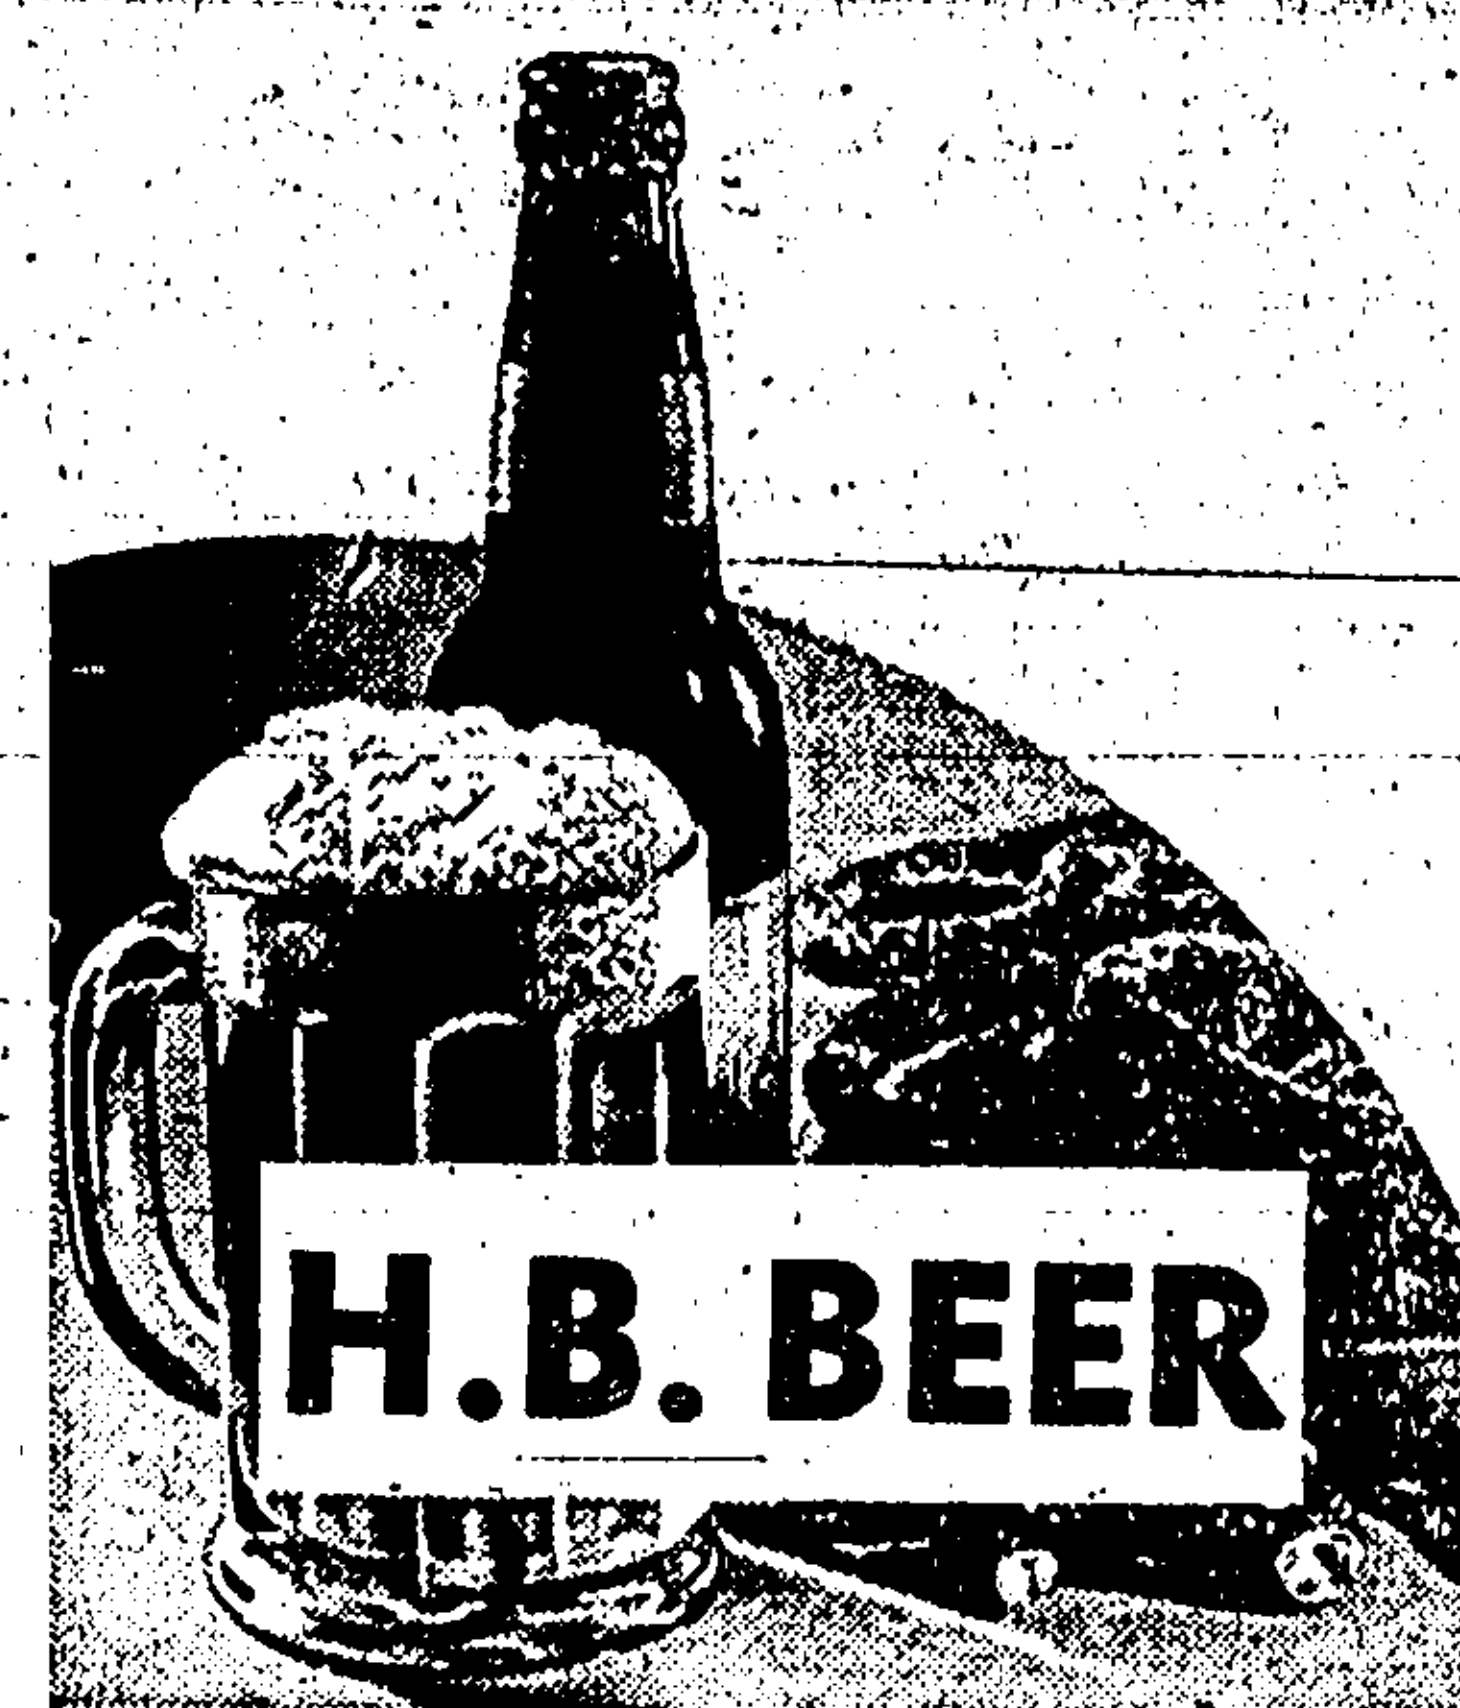

A representative Committee was appointed by the Council of the British Medical Association last January to consider and report upon the necessity for the cultivation of the physical development of the civilian population, and the methods to be pursued for that object. The Committee are not expected to report until early next year.

Refreshing — SATISFYING BOTH HUNGER AND THIRST.

"... We are satisfied that there is now no better, purer beer of its kind in the Far East. We therefore ask all who have not yet sampled our beer, as well as those who sampled it while we were experiencing trouble with cloudiness, to give it a trial now and pass judgment afresh on it.

NOW...your complexion stays MIRROR FRESH all evening long...

JUST as you turn from your mirror—freshly powdered—then is when you look your best! Oh, if there were only a face powder that would help you keep that Mirror-Fresh appearance!

The Marvelous blend contains a substance entirely new to face powder—with a remarkable power to cling to your skin. In a sense, it becomes part of your own skin texture.

Take heart, fair lady. There is such a face powder, called MARVELOUS. This powder clings as you've always wanted powder to cling—and never thought it could. Marvelous, indeed, is a different kind of powder, a different blend, developed by the Richard Hudnut laboratories after years of searching for a new, longer-clinging powder.

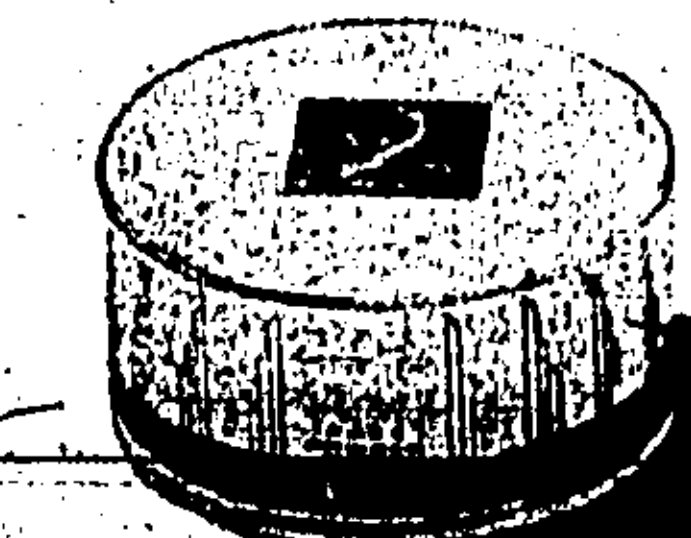

Marvelous Face Powder, therefore, never looks powdery on your skin. It looks like a new, more freshly-tinted, softer complexion of your own! And think of it—this flattering effect remains from four to six hours.

FILM COMPANY'S LOSS

DEATH OF CHINESE PRODUCER

Shanghai, July 16.

Deep regret was felt by local film circles when it was announced that Mr. Cheng Ching-chiu, promoter, director, vice-manager, and studio director of the Star Motion Picture Co. passed away this morning at the age of 48, from heart disease.

It is understood that the late Mr. Cheng had been with the Star Motion Picture Company for 12 years and was drawing $700 salary, and $700 Director's fee monthly, and was one of the highest paid members of the staff of the Company. He was the director of the famous picture "Two Sisters" recently shown in most of the Chinese cinema houses in Hongkong.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

POLAND TO CHOOSE

POPULAR ELECTIONS IN SEPTEMBER

Warsaw, July 16.

M. Moscicki, the President, has ordered elections for September, giving Poland her first popular test of political strength since the death of Marshal Pilsudski.—United Press.

CANTON'S RADIO

GROWING POPULARITY OF SERVICE

Canton, July 16.

Plans of the Canton Authorities to improve the system of communications, thereby enabling Canton to keep pace with other modern cities are reported to be making satisfactory progress. At the moment efforts are being concentrated on radio developments, including wireless broadcasting, government radio service and the radio telephone system.

As a definite improvement of the government radio service two new kilowatt transmitters have been installed, enabling the radio administration to handle efficiently Canton's radio traffic to all parts of the world. The improvement, it is stated, has brought considerably increased activity to the radio service.

The radio administration is putting up a new building in the vicinity of the Goddess of Mercy Mountain, to house all transmitters which will be shifted from the present site in the heart of the city. A cable will be installed to link up the Shakes office with the transmitters in the new station. The project is expected to be completed before the end of this year, when the radio service here is expected to become a most reliable means of communications to all parts of the world.

RECONSTRUCTION

NEW ROADS FOR HOPEI PROVINCE

Peiping, July 15.

Referring to the construction of roads in Hopei Province, General Shang Ching, the Chairman of the Hopei Provincial Government, reports that plans have been drawn up for the construction of two highways, one between Peiping and Paoting, and the other between Paoting and Tientsin. Work will begin shortly.

Peace is now prevailing in the demilitarized zone, General Shang continued.

Concerning the reported plans for Sino-Japanese economic co-operation in North China, General Shang said that he knew nothing about it except from reports published in the press.

General Shang is leaving for Tientsin shortly to attend to his duties there as Commander-in-Chief of the Tientsin-Tanku Peace Preservation Headquarters.—Central News Agency.

The growing popularity of the radio service here is shown by the fact that during the month of June, a total of 913 radiograms were transmitted to various parts of the world, as against 356 cablegrams.—Router.

Mother's Responsibility.

Little girls from their youngest days love to play with dolls and to fancy themselves mothers. Later, when they have real children of their own, they learn that the duties of motherhood are anything but play. It is to ease the cares of motherhood, and to remedy the ills of childhood, that Baby's Own Tablets have been devised. With Baby's Own Tablets handy in the house the mother finds herself relieved of the worry of considering just what to give her ailing little one when the stomach is out of order, or the child is troubled with constipation, colic, feverishness, croup or cold. These pleasant-tasting little Tablets likewise ease the pains of teething, check diarrhoea, expel worms, send the child off quickly into a calm health-giving sleep simply by dispelling the causes of its fretfulness and unrest.

Chemists everywhere sell Baby's Own Tablets.
For children of all ages.

AN APPEAL FOR SPORTSMANSHIP

True sportsmen of all races
will endorse the outspoken appeal
made by His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government at the Football Association meeting on Monday,
when he denounced misconduct
on the field of play and urged that players and spectators alike
should do all in their power to prevent a repetition of the unseemly incidents which marred
so many matches last season.
As Sir Thomas Southern remarked, not only are such incidents a serious reflection on sporting instincts, but they bring disgrace to the players concerned
and to football generally. The standard of football in Hongkong is so high that it is all the more regrettable that the game should be made to suffer by reason of players allowing their tempers to get out of hand in their anxiety to get the better
of the other fellow. Rivalry can be as keen as the most ardent enthusiast could wish, so long as it is healthy rivalry, based on due regard for the rules of the game
and a determination not to resort
to questionable tactics. In the heat of the moment, there is an ever-present temptation to relax
control of tempers, and occasions
will arise when it is not easy to keep the game clean, but the true sportsman is one who spurns to stoop to dirty play, no matter how great the provocation may
be. To put it no higher, such tactics do not pay in the long run. Players are not alone to blame for incidents which occur;
in many cases, they are egged on
and incited by partisan spectators who want their team to win
at all costs. In England, it is not uncommon for a ground to be suspended when the home spectators get out of hand, thus inflicting a financial loss on the Club concerned. Here in Hongkong, it would be difficult to follow this practice, as not all the clubs have their own grounds and spectators make a point of following their particular favourites, wherever the venue
may be. None the less, this matter of unruly behaviour by football fans is one which needs
to be taken into consideration
and, if possible, steps should be taken to deal with the evil. The new season will soon be starting
in Hongkong, and we would make an urgent appeal to Clubs,
in the interests of clean sport,
to take special steps with a view

NOTES OF THE DAY

SOMEBODY'S DIARY

October, 1931 — Arbitration:
Paraguayan and Bolivian ministers
meet in Washington to attempt settlement of Chaco boundary dispute by arbitration.

July, 1932 — War: A state of war
exists between Paraguay and Bolivia and both governments are
on a war footing.

May, 1933 — Death: Bolivia and Paraguay fight for eleven months;
60,000 men killed.

June, 1934 — Depression: Warfare brings economic depression to both Bolivia and Paraguay. Cash benefits go to foreign munitions makers.

April, 1935 — Exhaustion: Weary armies face each other along 200-mile front with indications fighting
will continue till one or the other nation collapses.

June, 1935 — Arbitration: Bolivia
and Paraguay sign peace protocol,
putting end to their fighting.
Gran Chaco dispute now to be settled by arbitration.

And now the Italo-Abyssinia dispute takes the same road, with the failure of arbitration; a road which leads through a nightmare of slaughter and misery, pestilence
and waste, to exhaustion, chaos, revolution, disillusion. A thousand years hence professors may teach six-year-olds how the "Progressive Age Man" knew too much to learn.

FEDERATIONS FOR PEACE

Lord Lothian, in suggesting federation as a means to world
peace, has sown seed bound ultimately to yield a fruitful
harvest. "The only final remedy
for war," Lord Lothian said at Lincoln's Inn Fields, London,
recently, "is the federation of nations. It need not begin on a world scale. It could begin among like-minded nations who were prepared to pool their sovereignty in supernational affairs and unite
under a constitution which created a government which would be sovereign in the supernational field though unable to interfere in the national field, and to claim obedience and some taxes from every individual for it." Lord Lothian did not develop the question of where such a federation could most appropriately start. It may be difficult to imagine France and Germany linking themselves together in a relationship of the kind. On the other hand if Germany were left out and linking began say with France and Russia,
it might be equally difficult to prevent reversion to some such system of alliances as that from which Europe suffered grievously
in pre-war days.

CANADIAN'S IDEA

There are, however, other parts
of the world where the obstacles
to be overcome might be eventually
less formidable. The late Prof.
Goldwin Smith of Toronto, 35 years ago, thought along lines parallel to those followed by Lord Lothian.
Professor Smith advocated closer
political co-operation between Ottawa and Washington as a means of avoiding the obvious economic disadvantages of the cutting of the North American continent into two
by a high tariff wall. Other examples of grouping of international interests of a purely utilitarian nature undoubtedly exist. Far Eastern developments of late years have emphasised this fact, where defence is concerned in regard to all the English-speaking peoples whose territories abut
upon the Pacific Ocean. Another group of mutual inter-relationships
has come into prominence since 1932 with Britain's adoption of tariffs. It embraces the industrialised masses of the United Kingdom on the one side and the agricultural communities of the Scandinavian and Iberian penin-sulas on the other. The world may still be far from such political amalgamations as those to which these considerations point. Nevertheless it may not be without significance that a statesman of eminence should indicate the potentialities for peace intent in progressively developing federations
of a political sort.

to preventing a recurrence of the trouble experienced last year.
Individual Clubs could do a very great deal in this direction by devising their own system of discipline to be applied to players
when found guilty of misconduct. Irrespective of such action as the Association may feel compelled to take. If players were warned, before the season started, that such a system would be put into force, they would perhaps think twice before risking their future and the future of their club by succumbing to the temptation to indulge in bad sportsmanship. Action on these lines, coupled with relentless punishment of the guilty by the Association, would soon stamp out the worst features of the game and elevate local football to the position which is its due.

GENERAL ELECTION
COMING SOON

By OLIVER BALDWIN

(Socialist, and son of Britain's Conservative Prime Minister).

In Westminster there is great talk of the forthcoming election and much speculation as to its date and results.

So far, however, nothing concrete has emerged, for the simple reason that the controllers of our parliamentary destiny have not yet weighed up the pros and cons.

It is likely, however, that when
the House rises the Prime Minister
will go abroad for a well-earned rest and that the final decision to hold an election will not be made till September.

There will then be two alternatives before the Government.
Either to go to the country at the end of October, in order to forestall
a possible winter increase in unemployment, which may well follow France's possible departure from
the gold standard; or to produce a hopeful Budget in the spring and bear it on their standards to the polls. The national crisis will be
"Danger from foreign invasion,"
"Increased tariffs," and "Returning prosperity."

The last cry will probably be the most effective, for everyone will have forgotten by then that our increased exports, which have so benefited trade are the direct result
of our departure from the gold standard, to prevent which the original National Government was formed.

We are an illogical and forgetful
people, and therefore it will be safe
to credit our Government with the beneficial consequences of a pound
sterling well below gold par.

Opposed to the National Government candidates will be both Labour and Liberal. The cry of the former will be "Preparation for Peace," rather than "Preparation for War," and the latter party will expatulate on the iniquities of the tariff system.

As an adjunct to the National campaign will be the appeal to Fear, which is such a safe card to play on our liberty-loving and loyal people.

They will be told, and quite rightly, that if a Socialist Government comes into power there will be a financial panic. They will not be told to wonder how or why it is engineered, nor what would happen
if they paid no attention to it.
Neither will they be told that if
Mr. MacDonald had suspended the Bank Charter Act in the summer
of 1931, we should have got rid of financial panics of that sort for ever.

If the Independent Liberals place
a goodly number of candidates in the field, it will undoubtedly help
the Labour Party in any constituency but an industrial one.
In the industrial towns it will have no real effect, and most of the Liberal candidates will lose their deposits. In any case, I think it fair to suggest that the industrial North, Lancashire, and the Black

Country will return to their old
Labour allegiance; that towns like Norwich, Northampton, Nottingham, and Hull will send Labour
members back, but that the Nationalists will still hold Southampton, Plymouth, and Portsmouth, in which towns seats went Labour in 1929.

I see no signs of any landslide or general dissatisfaction with the Government, and now that a more consistent politician will lead the National forces there is likely to be more respect for the sincerity of the programme from the general public. The Labour appeal will lack the force of 1929, for it will be led by the same men who were tried
as Socialists and found wanting.

It is going to be very difficult for Mr. Clynes to say what he will do to introduce Socialism if he becomes a Cabinet Minister again
when we remember his magnificent defence of the traditions and sanctity of the City of London in 1930.

Miss Bondfield will find it embarrassing to defend her past record, so will Mr. E. O. Roberts and Mr. Wedgwood Benn; but, on the other hand, as I have said before, we are a forgiving and forgetful people and time alters
many convictions.

Undoubtedly there will be a large increase in the Labour vote,
owing to the many new voters
attaining the age of twenty-one
and coming from families where
the parents have been converted to Labour since the war from either of the two other parties. There has also been a certain amount of new conversion to Labour among
the white-collared class, though not among manual workers.

I cannot see in the next House of Commons any representatives of
that strange collection of ex-Liberals and flattered Socialists
who make up the party known as National Labour; and it will be a good thing for our parliamentary system if there are not.

There is every tendency in the Labour Party to-day to break definitely with Socialism and become another Liberal Party.

To sum up, then, we may take
it that the election will fall before unemployment figures rise with the winter months and that the issue
will be between those who like drifting along and those who don't.
The more comfortable alternative
will win, and a Nationalist majority of two hundred seats will be the figure.

Then we shall all have a Happy
Christmas and a Merry New Year
unless we happen to be out of work or idealistic or reformers or anything as unpleasant as that, but fortunately (or unfortunately)
most of us are not built that way.

The Very Idea
BACK TO SCHOOLEnglish, As She Are Spoke,
Are Dreadful

Says Master Eddie Kelly,

WE HAVE just been digesting what Miss Sawyer had to say last week
about school examinations.

Too much importance, she averred, is attached to
marks and examinations,
and the children themselves
are the worst offenders.

This is what comes of being a modern kid.

When we were a boy, confront us with an all-day sucker, and a good place where they had green apples and a hole in the fence, and our attachment for marks and examinations got nebulous
all over.

At school we were good at transitory verbs, Algebra,
on the other hand, we regarded as a sort of mathematician's
Esperanto.

Whether A plus 2 equalled Y
minus 1 left us still mending our catapult. Our attitude towards
A and Y was, "Let 'em."

As for spelling and grammar,
we were always strong at this,
and what we can't make out is why a bloke can't spill a sentence these days without crashing on his atches and coming a thud on his ownays and ervays. In our kid times, a scholar what stretched his ear when the old dame was sprouting her piece
and listened in all he knew, why,
that kid will talk the perfectest
English and get away with it.

Then at 10.66 p.m. William the Conqueror landed in the old durt—
well, we were delighted to hear about it, so we bit a piece out of our pear, and put it back under our deak.

Our ambition at school was to split farther than anybody else in the district. So much for ambition.

Of course, we will admit that Hongkong school-kids are in a different category. Our category used to wander out every night
after dark and about half-an-hour later you would hear it mounling on the tiles, or something like that.

Take luxuries, for instance.
About the only luxury we ever saw
at school was the girl's garter one of the big boys had. We have since thought that his mother discarded
it, and we were robbed. We bought it off him for 100 marbles
and a three weeks' mortgage on our Sunday school money.

That was a long time ago. We have had real live pairs of them
since, and now that we're getting old we sometimes sit down and suck
our pipe and wish that we had our marbles back.

We used to have some fine times
at school. We remember, when we were at the Zimbongaponga district school in South Africa we had a lion which wanted to be very much attached to us. Whenever we went, the lion was sure to go. It followed us to school one day (we were always about three laps in front of it), and we scooted it on to the teacher, who lectured to us about it.

"That, children, is a lion," she said, clinging tightly to the school belfry.

"Yes, miss," we said, from the adjoining roof.

"You have frequently read of the rolling deep and the bounding main. That, children, is a bounding main."

"The skin of the lion—attention, Edward—makes an excellent hearth-rug if the lion is emptied out of it."

"There is not a great deal of trade done in lions; hunters usually shoot them and leave them where they lie. Hence the term 'lion'.
Now, children, are there any questions?"

"Yes, Miss," we shrieked, "in view of the present situation, may
we have the rest of the day off?"

"Yes," she said, "the class may disperse."

No... the teacher was saved.
The lion got killed in the rush.

Anyhow, returning to children
and ambition and examinations
and all that sort of thing. We would like to end by saying that if we had a son who didn't have an entire lack of ambition at school

"Yes, there's a farm about four miles down that has chickens and eggs and all that sort of thing."

SILVER PLAN DOES MUCH DAMAGE

EFFECTS SEEN IN CHINA

New York, July 16.

One hundred and fifty businessmen lunching at India House here today in honour of the American Economic Mission to the Far East, heard Mr. W. Cameron Forbes give a resume of the Mission's impressions.

Firstly, Mr. Forbes assailed the United States silver policy as far as its effect on China was concerned.

Secondly, he declared that the United States and Japanese trade balance was so heavily against Japan that the latter would soon find sources of supply other than the United States for the principal products, especially cotton.

Thirdly, he asserted that China was greatly in need of foreign financial assistance for rail-road construction and shipping, hence he recommended United States investments.

Fourthly, he stressed the importance of the Philippines as a market for the United States.

The Japanese Ambassador to Washington, Mr. Saito and the Chinese Minister Dr. Alfred Sze, also spoke, praising the Mission's efforts in the Far East.—United Press.

GREAT GATHERING

London, July 16.

To-night 157 ships of the Royal Navy, as well as vessels of the merchant navy and fishing fleet, anchored in the review area off Spithead, were illuminated at the conclusion of the Jubilee Review by the King.

The signal for the illumination was given by a bouquet of rockets fired from the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert.

When the Royal Yacht returned to her station at the head of the lines after a ten mile cruise past the fleet this afternoon, the review ended with a fly-past of 115 aeroplanes of the Fleet Air Arm. About half a mile from the Yacht each squadron went into a steep dive from 1,500 feet and swooped down in perfect formation past the King on the bridge.

The great spectacle has drawn a huge throng of people to the shores of the mainland and the Isle of Wight and high ground overlooking the sea.

To-night Portsmouth, Southampton and other seaside towns are in carnival. To-morrow unless the weather is unfavourable, the King, in the Victoria and Albert, will lead the Fleet to sea for exercises, including tactical movements, heavy gun firing at a towed target, 8-inch gun fire at a wireless controlled target ship and anti-aircraft firing at wireless controlled "Queen Bee" aerial targets.—British Wireless.

"A COUNTRY GIRL"

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY TO PRODUCE

As the result of various negotiations which have taken place since the annual general meeting, the Hongkong Philharmonic Society have decided to produce "A Country Girl" in January next.

This popular musical play was revived in London a short while ago, and it is interesting to record the opinion of the theatrical critic of Truth, that while it was thought to be a good performance of modern musical plays if they had two good tunes, "A Country Girl" was full of them.

Pleasant memories will be revived by such old favourites as "Under the Deodar," "Try again Johnnie," "The Rajah of Bhong," and "Peace, Peace, oh for some Peace," to mention only a few of the songs with which this play is crammed.

While the musical side of the production is to be carried out by Mr. A. B. Yule, the Committee have pleasure in stating that the Rev. Cyril Brown, Chaplain of the Mission to Seamen, has joined the Committee as Hon. Producer of the Society, and it is felt that with both the musical and production sides in such able hands a notable success will be procured.

It is hoped to commence rehearsals early in September, when all lovers of music and the theatre are requested to attend.

Silverites Campaign

MCCARRAN RALLIES HIS FORCES

Washington, July 16.

Senator Patrick McCarran today called a meeting of a dozen Silverites of the Senate at which he voiced grievances against the Administration silver policies.

The meeting discussed new legislation for a more direct mandate for the Administration to continue silver purchases until the price of $1.29 per ounce has been reached.

The meeting also discussed specifically reframing the McCarran amendments to the permissive Silver Purchase Act and referring them to the Senate Agriculture committee where they would be assured of an immediate favourable report.

The amendments, which have been in the hands of the Banking Committee for weeks, would repeal the 50 per cent tax on silver trading profits as well as the nationalisation of silver and the right of the Secretary of the Treasury to prohibit trading in the metal.—Reuter.

WANTS REFORM

Washington, July 16.

Senator Patrick McCarran today introduced a bill for the repeal of the fifty per cent tax on silver transactions.

At his own request the Bill was referred to the Senate Agriculture Committee in the hopes that it would be given more favourable consideration than if it went to the Senate Banking Committee, where similar measures are already under consideration.

TYPHOON HITS HAINAN

MUCH DAMAGE REPORTED

The typhoon which narrowly missed Hongkong last Monday was responsible for considerable damage to property and life in Hainan Islands, in Southern Kwangtung, which suffered the full force of the blow, according to Chinese messages from Hoihow.

The meagre information to hand says that over twenty fishing boats are missing and several fishermen are feared to have been drowned. The typhoon lasted for about an hour, causing a great amount of destruction on shore.

NO ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS

ATTEMPT SWAMPED BY BIG VOTE

Washington, July 16.

A big House drive to force a hurried adjournment of Congress fizzled out, being smothered by a huge Democratic majority, with a vote of 250 to 86.

It was a peculiar circumstance that the attempt was initiated by a Democrat, but when the vote was called only 15 party members joined, the rest being Republicans.—Reuter.

BRITISH FINANCES

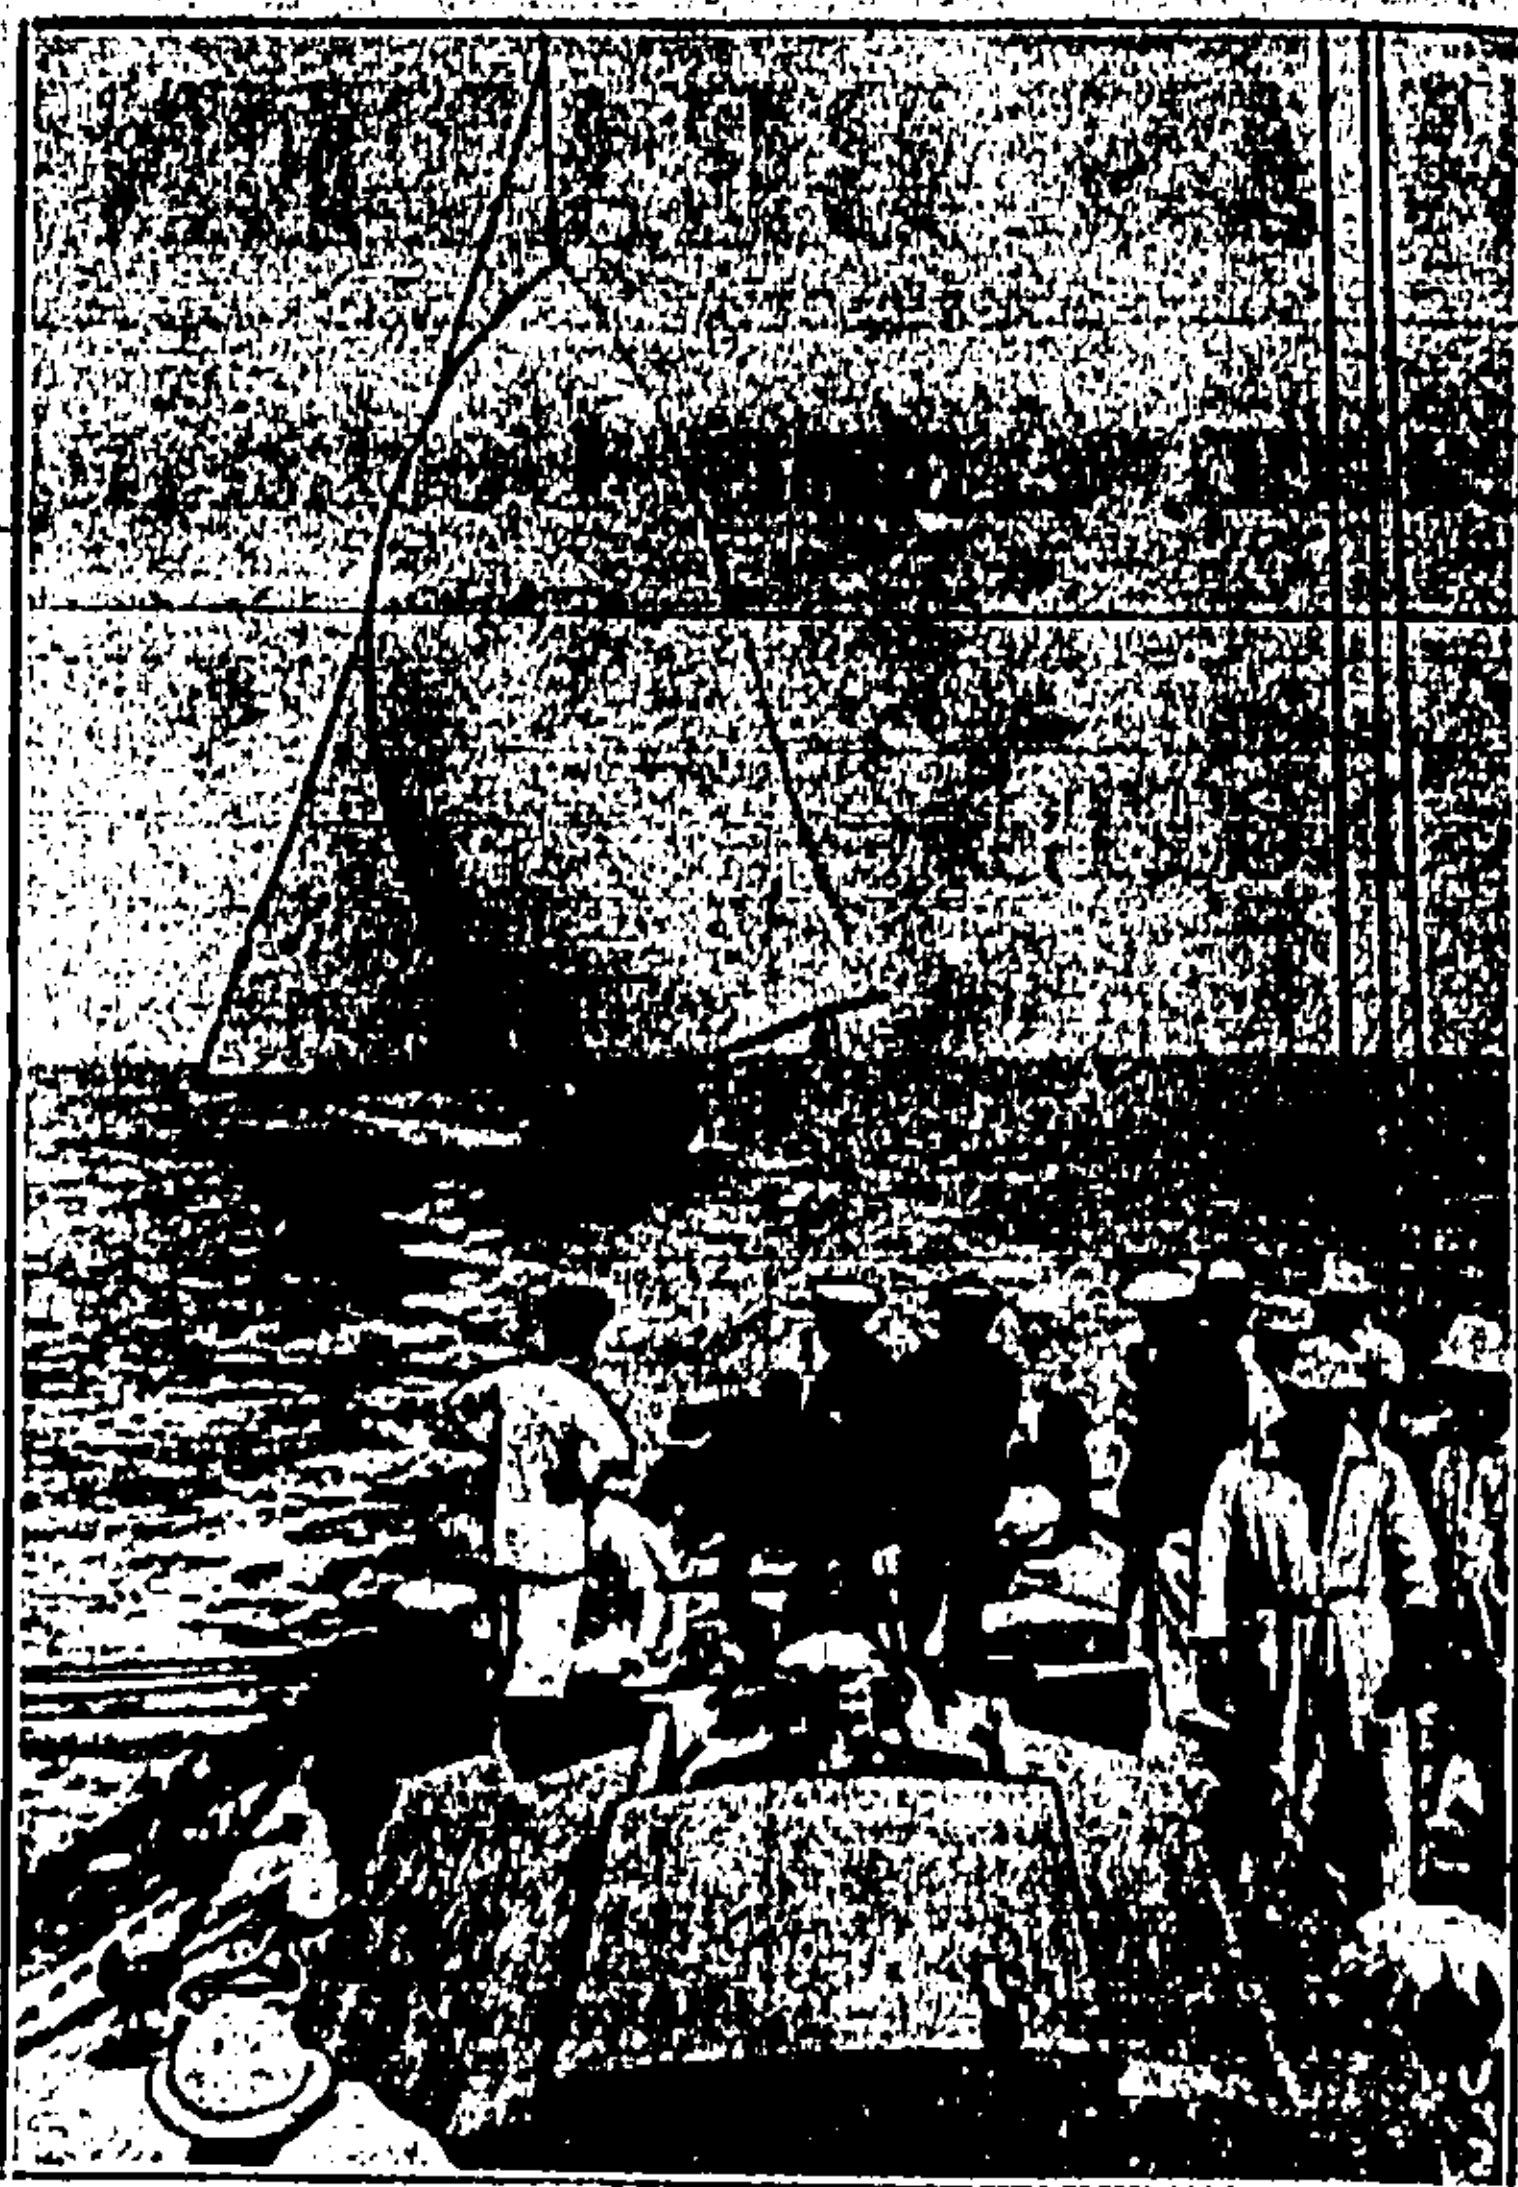

LATEST TREASURY RETURNS

London, July 16.

Exchequer returns show that the total ordinary revenue to date, excluding self-balancing items, amounts to £154,731,019, compared with £155,212,311, at the corresponding date of last year. Revenue from Customs and Excise is greater by £354,000 than for the same period of last year, and is only half a million pounds short of the estimated increase for the whole current year, of £4,224,000. Total ordinary expenditure, exclusive of self-balancing items, for the current year to date is £216,624,209, against £207,111,335, at the corresponding date of 1934.—British Wireless.

TYPHOON WARNING

The Manila Observatory reports at 8.20 a.m. today a typhoon in about 120° Long, 16° Lat., moving N.W. The position given is in the Pacific to the east of North Luzon.

A striking picture of T. O. M. Sopwith's America's Cup challenger Endeavour coming on space to overtake the Velishe, whose deck can be seen in the foreground. Shortly after this picture was taken the Endeavour overtook the Velishe to win the first yacht race of the current season off Harwich.

VICTORIA GAOL EXECUTION

MURDER OF WAITRESS RECALLED

Chau Chung, alias Chau Chung-yu, aged 23 years, whose plea of guilty to the murder of a waitress, Chui Wah-hing, 20, of the Kong So Restaurant, was accepted at the June Criminal Sessions, was hanged at Victoria Gaol at 5 o'clock this morning in the presence of the Superintendent of Prisons, the Chief Warden and Dr. Ingram Shaw, Medical Officer of the Prison.

A formal inquest will be held at the Central Magistracy in the course of the day.

At the lower Court proceedings, it was mentioned that the girl was stabbed by Chau with a knife outside 38 Upper Lascar Row where she lived. Immediately after he had committed the deed, accused stabbed himself apparently with the intention of committing suicide. Seven letters were found on accused, and in all of them there was mention of killing.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, conducted the Crown case, while Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. M. W. Lo, appeared for the accused at the Criminal Sessions.

The last man who paid the extreme penalty was Ng Lo-yuen, accused in the "Nullah Murder," who was hanged in Victoria Gaol on March 29 for the murder of Michael Ping.

THE VERY IDEA!

and was not possessed of an awful and burning desire to evade all examinations and home-work—we'd be looking at him with two eyes full of suspicion.

What difference does it make anyway. There's too much class distinction at schools. If an ex-Diocean Girls' scholar says "I was going down the road," what business is it of a C.B.S. scholar to put her right and say, "You was going down the road."

Probably all the time the man was telling lies and he never even seen the road. All me eye, that's what it is. "I am going to eat an apple," "You are going to eat an apple," and all that. We AINT going to eat an apple. We don't go much on apples. Which is all we have to say on education.

One case of Typhoid (Imported) and one case of Meningitis were reported to the local Health authorities on Monday. During the week just ended one case of Animal Rabies, one case of Pueraul Fever with one death, one death from Meningitis, two cases of Diphtheria with one death, 11 cases of Typhoid (two imported) with three deaths, and 67 deaths from Tuberculosis were reported.

Members of the Australian and New Zealand Association are reminded that the annual general meeting will be held in the Association Rooms, 307-308 Gloucester Building, at 5.30 p.m. to-day.

ENJOYABLE FUNCTION

R. E. OLD COMRADES WHIST DRIVE AND TOMBOLA

A very successful whist drive and tombola was held under the auspices of the Hongkong Branch of the Royal Engineers Old Comrades Association in Wellington Barracks on Monday evening.

In spite of the inclement weather, 20 tables were occupied, the event being held not in the open, as was originally intended, but in the Sappers Dining Room, and the attendance augurs well for the future social events to be held by the Association. Four prizes for ladies and four for gentlemen were very kindly presented to the winners by Mrs. Smith, after which light refreshments were served and the tombola started.

The next whist drive and tombola will be held in Wellington Barracks, in the open air if possible, on Monday, July 29, commencing at 7 p.m. when it is hoped that all interested in the Association, and their friends will come along.

LICENCES REFUSED

FORTNIGHTLY MEETING OF SANITARY BOARD

An application for an offensive trade licence (cleansing sharks' fins) at No. 10 Des Voeux Road—West, third floor, was refused by the Sanitary Board at its fortnightly meeting held yesterday.

The President (Mr. W. J. Carrie) said that the premises were used for domestic purposes and the Board had already agreed to refuse the application.

The Board also came to a similar decision in regard to the application for an eating house licence at No. 64 Des Voeux Road Central, ground floor, on the ground that the kitchen accommodation was inadequate.

Discussion of an application for an eating house licence at No. 352 Shanghai Street, ground floor was deferred until the next meeting of the Board, the President stating that the Select Committee had not yet come to a definite decision.

Those present at the meeting were: Mr. W. J. Carrie (President), Dr. G. W. Pope (Medical Officer of Health), Mr. N. K. Lo, Mr. L. O. F. Bellamy, Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto, and Mr. C. J. Roe (Secretary).

STAR FERRY "CIRCUS"

SHELTER FOR PASSENGERS TO BE BUILT

First steps towards the erection of concrete shelters for the comfort of passengers took shape yesterday afternoon when the bus terminus was shifted from its present position a little further to the left of the Star Ferry "Circus" and nearer to the Railway Station.

It is also hoped to build a rest house but the exact location of this has not been determined as yet.

The shelters are being erected by the Kowloon Motor Bus Company Limited at a cost of $8,000, and when completed will certainly prove a boon to patrons.

HOW JIRO YAMAGISHI WAS BEATEN AT WIMBLEDON

FAULTLESS TENNIS AT START

But Collapses After The Second Set

(By "Veritas")

Wimbledon, June 26.

After playing faultless tennis for two sets on a court rendered heavy by torrential rains which had fallen 24 hours earlier, Jiro Yamagishi eliminated himself from the Wimbledon championship to-day, when opposed to Gene Mako, the new American "Hope".

It would be more accurate to say that Yamagishi lost by 2-6, 2-6, 0-2, 6-1, 6-2 than to aver that he was beaten by that score. The better player, that is judged by standards of pure tennis, lost on the day's display.

But full credit must be given to Mako for a spirited fight against odds which included some curious umpiring decisions.

Three times in the third set Yamagishi was given the benefit of his first service delivery which, on each occasion, was clearly a fault and from which Mako was forced to make erroneous returns.

There was also an unfortunate incident in the fourth game of the second set when Yamagishi, trailing at 1-2 served what looked to be a fault and which Mako returned in the middle of the tramlines. The umpire permitted the service but gave the point against Yamagishi. The Japanese naturally protested and the play was held up a couple of minutes while the umpire talked with a linesman, after which he reversed his decision and allowed Yamagishi the point.

There was a large crowd surrounding the No. 6 court which appeared to have retained the effects of yesterday's thunderstorm more than the other courts. The majority of the spectators already knew Yamagishi, but they were anxious to get a glimpse of Mako, who, so far as English tennis enthusiasts are concerned, is still something of an "Unknown".

SPECTACULAR TENNIS

For two sets Mako did nothing to impress, whereas Yamagishi, flashing out drives, drop shots, volleys and "kills" cartered through 18 games in spectacular style, giving every indication of a win in straight sets.

For the first two sets the Japanese could do nothing wrong. The fact that the heavy court refused to permit the ball to travel more than a foot or so did not worry him in the least.

Using his feet and body extremely well he drove flat racket to both corners, keeping an ideal length. Whenever he essayed an advance to the net it was generally so well planned that he scored direct with his marvellous cross-court volley.

And while Yamagishi was pulling out winning strokes with the ease of Cochet at his best, and the ferocity of Perry in his most enthusiastic moments, Mako was struggling with, apparent failure to find his touch. Yamagishi's speed had him running all over the court and forcing him into wild hitting and many errors; the Japanese also worried the American with his adroit drop shots, and generally speaking had Gene fairly out-generaled.

THE METAMORPHOSIS

The metamorphosis started in the third set. Yamagishi made three (Continued on Page 9.)

F. CULLEN BEATS F. J. JONES

MATCH OF FEW THRILLS

LAWN BOWLS TIE DECIDED

By playing a steadier game than did his opponent, Fred Cullen, of the Kowloon Dock, qualified for the fourth round of the Open Singles Championship yesterday F. J. Jones, of the Civil Service C. C., by a margin of 21 shots to 11, on the Craigen-gower C. C. green.

Neither player was able to maintain a consistently high standard of bowls and, as a result, the game provided little over which to enthuse. The scoring, particularly during the first half of the game, was too one-sided to prove of interest, and the match was almost devoid of thrills, except to supporters of the two players.

Cullen's victory was due to two reasons. He was much steadier than his opponent although both were brilliant at times, and Cullen was also blessed with quite a good proportion of what was going. Many of his counters were due to luck more than to good play on his part but, as must always be expected from seasoned players, he brought off some very fine shots during the match.

It was obvious that Jones has not yet completely recovered from his recent mishap and he was not bowling as well as he has been doing in previous matches. He was out-played by the Kowloon Dock exponent and was always trailing behind.

From a lead of three shots scored on the first two heads, Cullen went to 4-1 on the fourth, on which head Jones was lying two when the Kowloon Dock player, with a lucky kick drew first shot.

A four on the eighth head made the score 11-2 in Cullen's favour. There was nothing particularly brilliant about the count, as his four woods were stretched across the green in a straight line, the fourth shot being about four feet from the jack. Jones was short with his first, and heavy with his second while his third was wide, and with his fourth he drove in an attempt to break up the head. His delivery, however, sailed through one of the posts and touched the two woods without altering the position.

A two to Cullen on the eleventh head made the score 14-3 but then Jones staged a recovery, by scoring six including a three, on the next three heads. The thirteenth head was the best of the match and saw each player lying in turn until Jones claimed the shot with his last wood. Cullen's final delivery missing by mere inches.

However, after Jones had reduced the deficit and made the score 14-9 in Cullen's favour he was not able to hold his opponent, although he managed to keep him down to singles. On the last eight heads Cullen scored seven singles while Jones registered a two on the 10th. The match ended on the 22nd head with Cullen qualifying by 21-11.

In the match between Surrey and Hampshire at Basingstoke last month, Andrew Sandham, the visitors' opening batsman, scored 103 runs, which gave him his hundredth hundred.

He is the tenth cricketer to score this number of centuries in first class cricket. W. P. Hammond, of Gloucestershire, was the ninth, Sandham has scored a century against every other county with the exception of Gloucestershire and Worcestershire.

JACK PETERSEN BEATEN

HIS FATHER SAYS "RETIRE"

WALTER NEUSEL'S GAMENESS

(By Fred Dartnell)

London, June 26.
Jack Petersen made a heroic effort to turn the tables on his German rival, Walter Neusel, in their return match at the Wembley Stadium last night—but all in vain.

Every record for a fight in this country went by the board. Despite showery weather there were between 50,000 and 60,000 spectators to see Petersen forced to retire by sheer physical weakness at the end of the tenth round. The previous fight, last February, ended in the eleventh round, when Petersen's eye had been badly damaged.

His finest boxing was not so bad as before, but it was not so bad as before, and I think he boxed and fought with far greater success than in any other match.

His father advised him to retire, and his decision came with startling abruptness, because in the two previous rounds he had obtained a wonderful mastery over his man.

He boxed with superb skill, sending in stinging jabs and fine right-handers that had Neusel almost groggry.

Neusel's left eye was practically closed, and at the end of the ninth round, when he went to his corner, there was an obvious argument between him and his manager.

MANAGER INTERVIEWS
The German looked dejected, and although one could only suspect the import of his remarks, it certainly seemed as if he wanted to retire.

The manager spoke encouragingly and pleadingly to Neusel, and he came up for the tenth round with a do-or-die expression.

He got home on Petersen's body with both hands and nearing the end a smashing right sent Petersen reeling to the ropes, for more punishment.

That was the dramatic turn of a tide that had been building triumphantly for the British champion, but I am convinced that it was the extra 20lb. weight which the loser had to concede to his opponent which really decided the issue.

GRIM PURSUIT
Neusel rarely let up in his dogged pursuit of the slender Welshman. He took smashing rights with disdain, and his grim, assiduous contrasted curiously with the almost exalted fervour of Petersen.

The Welsh blood of the lower ran high, and towards the end of the fight he punched his punches with cries in Welsh.

After Petersen's eye had been hurt in the second round a restorative was applied to it. Petersen writhed in pain.

I noticed that afterwar no matter how bad the eye might be, he would not permit the same treatment to be applied.

MAGNIFICENT
It was a great fight, and one that redounded highly to the credit of both men for their skill, courage, endurance and sportsmanship.

Petersen was magnificent in defeat against impossible odds. Neusel won on his gameness. In other contests, Ben Ford, South Africa, lost on points to Gunner Barland, Finland, and Eddie Wenzel, Canada, was disqualified for hitting Eddie Phillips, British, light-heavy weight champion, during the interval after the ninth round.

CRICKET STRATEGY AT LEEDS

BOWES FAILS IN PLOT

TOURISTS DEFEND STUBBORNLY

London, July 16.
Bowlers employed every subtlety known in cricket to dislodge H. F. Wade, the South African captain, when the two became associated during the Third Test match at Headingley, Leeds, where England had declared their second innings closed at 294 for seven wickets in an effort to force a win.

The earlier South African batsmen had all defended stubbornly but when Cameron went to the wickets he immediately enlightened proceedings with some lefty hitting, sometimes not altogether hitting the ball squarely.

Wade, however, was wide awake to the situation and refused to run easy singles.

William Bowes, the Yorkshire fast bowler, purposely gave Cameron chances in order to get Cameron opposite him but Wade frustrated the plot by refusing to run, although the ball, on two separate occasions, travelled over 30 yards.

Cameron continued to hit out freely whenever he faced the bowling and was at last dismissed by Ames—but too late to be of benefit to England. His dismissal was brought about just on time and no further play was possible. Cameron had made 49 while Wade's contribution was 32.

When the English captain found that his regular bowlers were unable to cause any trouble to the batsmen, Wyatt went on himself and sent down numerous full tosses which Wade allowed to pass into the "wicket-keeper's hands."

Mitchell was tried and then Barber, who, with his second delivery, had Cameron stumped.

The fifth wicket had put on 83 runs in 90 minutes. Cameron hit out six and six fours in his innings of 49.

THOUSAND RUNS IN SEASON

SUTCLIFFE FIRST ENGLISHMAN

BUT BEATEN BY SIEDLE

I. J. Siedle, the South African batsman, and Herbert Sutcliffe, the England and Yorkshire opening batsman, had the distinction of being the first players to reach 1,000 runs this season.

Sutcliffe achieved the feat on Monday, June 24, in the match against Yorkshire at Sheffield when he scored 48 runs in the second innings after having knocked up 51 in the first.

Sutcliffe was only beaten by the South African by one day and became the first Englishman to perform the feat. He made one and seventeen in the same match to give him his 1,000 runs for the season.

During the season Sutcliffe has scored five centuries, including a double century against Worcestershire, while Siedle, on three occasions, passed the 100.

THIRD HAT-TRICK

H.D. Read, of Essex, Takes Successive Wickets

The third hat-trick of the County Cricket season was done at Bristol, where H. D. Read, of Essex, got the wickets of Neale, Goddard and Smith, of Gloucestershire, with consecutive balls. Wensley (Sussex) and Gover (Surrey) are the players who did it earlier in the season.

CHAMPIONSHIPS OF LONDON

TENNIS TITLES UNDECIDED

BOTH SINGLES DIVIDED

Four days of almost continuous wet weather made it a practical certainty that the London championships tournament at Queen's Club must resolve itself into a "get-as-far-as-we-can" meeting, for the entry was so large and so good that to finish all the events was, humanly and humanly, impossible. Indeed, great credit is due to the management for so nearly reaching a definite conclusion in all events. It was, naturally, unfortunate that this year there will be no singles champions of London; but with their other engagements, those who reached the semi-finals would have had too much to do, and it was therefore decided that only the semi-finals should be played, and the final divided.

The first to reach the stage of division was Mme. Henrotin, France's No. 2, who, on a really hot morning, just got the better of Signorina Valerio, the Italian champion. This was one of those odd matches which last an hour and a half, and may be said to have been decided by a single shot. After a long first set, in which Signorina Valerio had saved a set-point at 6-5, and eventually won it at 8-6, the score went to 4—all in the second after Mme. Henrotin had led 4-2. She was love-30 in the next game, and the Italian played what looked a certain winner, but Mme. Henrotin made a lovely, if lucky, back-hand half-volley off it and won the point. This encouraging escape had such an effect that she won the next eight strokes for the set, and was never seriously pressed in the final set. Her very safe back-hand and her perfect length were the chief factors in her success, and she showed that she could play a drop-shot as well as her opponent, which is saying a good deal.

Miss S. Noel was the only Englishwoman left in, and in the other semi-final she had to play Senorita Lizana, of Chile. This was a good game with a pathetic finish. Miss Noel, playing coolly and well, took the first set, but the Chilean went away from three all in the second, to win it. At the start of the third, however, she became very erratic, repeatedly hitting out of court, and Miss Noel reached 4-love. But from that moment, the great heat of the afternoon was too much for her. She tired rapidly; and Senorita Lizana, sensing her chance to pull the match out of the fire, piled on game after game without reply, until she had won six off the reel, and with them an extraordinary match. For the last four games Miss Noel was run to a standstill and hardly moved a point.

AN AMERICAN DUEL

There was a very big crowd to watch the two Americans, W. Allison and D. Budge, who are almost a replica of Maurice McLoughlin, without his terrifying service. He has lots of lovely shots, but makes many errors. His speedy drives, very low over the net, and of a perfect length, took him to 5-2 in the first set; but then for three games he played as badly as previously he had played well. He recovered to get ahead again at 6-5, but Allison got on terms, and was never afterwards headed, eventually taking the set at 10-8. He had been rather the better volleyer of the two, but Budge made some very spectacular smashes of the kind that the crowd loves to see. The second set was neither so close nor so good as the first; Allison got ahead and never let Budge catch him. There was very little in it; longer experience pulled Allison through. Men's Singles. Semi-final Round: D. N. Jones beat D. Frenn, 2-6, 6-0, 6-3; W. L. Allison beat D. Budge, 10-8, 6-3. Final: Jones and Allison divided.

FAULTLESS TENNIS AT START

BUT FAILS TO LAST

atrocious strokes in the first two games, and Mako, suddenly discovering that he could anticipate his opponent's short shots, and that he could worry him with some chop and slice, sprang into life and led 2-1.

Then followed the game which changed the whole trend of the match. Yamagishi, now tentative and protesting, lost his nerve to be led 3-1. He never again held the ascendancy. Mako demonstrated a wonderful reserve of energy to secure three sets in a row and he also revealed an array of strokes and a knowledge of the game which one would never have suspected by his earlier form. He found that by hurrying Yamagishi into his return the Japanese was anything but stable off the ground. So he crowded on the pace, nullifying Yamagishi's efforts to preserve his driving superiority by heavily chopping and slicing his own ground strokes.

Mako's control also improved as the match wore on, and finally it was he who had Yamagishi guessing with some beautiful drop shots and drop volleys.

Once the American had drawn level there was no stopping him. He seemed to appreciate the presence of the encouraging Donald Budge, his Davis Cup colleague, and in the final set he made all the running and won without a great deal of opposition.

SHOULD NOT HAVE LOST

Nevertheless Yamagishi should not have lost. He had the match in his pocket at the end of the second set, and it was his foolishness in easing up, concentrating too much on drop shots which eventually became obvious and easy to return, and his refusal to retain the initiative which chiefly contributed to his defeat.

Yamagishi could have won and should have won.

When I spoke to him afterwards he offered no excuse. "I ought to have won," he said, "but I seemed to lose all my confidence. At the same time I think you will agree that he (Mako) played very well indeed."

Yamagishi says he likes the English grass courts very much, and is thoroughly enjoying his stay here. After Wimbledon he is going to play in the East Coast Championships at Felixstowe.

Itoh, who played for Cambridge University second string this year said he was enjoying himself at the 'Varsity where he is studying Economics. He hopes to remain there for another two years.

Round: Senorita A. Lizana beat Miss S. Noel, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; Mme. S. Henrotin beat Signorina L. Valerio, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3. Final: Senorita Lizana and Mme. Henrotin divided.

OPEN RINK TOURNEY

Holland's Four Enter Semi-Finals

The strong Kowloon Bowling Green Club four, P. T. Farrell, R. Duncan, J. C. Brown and Adam Holland (skip) advanced to the semi-finals of the Open Lawn Bowls Rink Championship when they defeated their club mates, D. W. Waterson, W. E. Hale, J. Tetley and M. J. Henderson (skip), by 25-18, on the Club de Recreation green yesterday afternoon.

A sharp shower fell on the 16th head and play was stopped for a few minutes. The weather cleared sufficiently to allow the game to be concluded.

Holland was outstanding among the eight players. He delivered some excellent woods and gained many shots for his side. He was well supported by Duncan and Farrell. Brown's play was patchy.

Henderson played a good game for the losers. Waterson bowled a couple of good woods but Tetley and Hale were weak. Tetley was inclined to be a bit too heavy and sent a couple of his woods into the ditch.

Holland's quartette led 7-0 on the 4th head before Henderson's rink opened their account with a three. On the 9th head, Holland's rink registered a five to lead 13-8. On the 13th head, Henderson scored a two and Holland then led 14-11. Play continued in Holland's favour and on the 17th head the score was 23-11 in his favour. A two on the next head brought the total to 25. On the last head of the game Henderson's four obtained a two.

SINGLES MATCHES

Playing on the Club de Recreation green in the Singles event yesterday, H. Overy, of the Kowloon Cricket Club, defeated his clubmate, C. J. Tatchell by 21 shots to eight on the 17th head.

SERIAL STORY

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XXIII

Michael said nothing for the space of five minutes, during which Katharine should be furious. She drew into a side road—a sort of lane, blocked from the main road's view by a screen of apple trees. She had had a picnic here with the Mercer children only the week before.

She shut off the engine. After its steady hum the silence was almost deafening. Half a city block away the roar of steady traffic on a main artery sounded. But here there was the humming of bees in a clover field. And quiet. And a man in the seat beside her, waiting for her to speak.

"What is it?"
 Katharine had the queerest feeling that she had lived through this scene some time—some place—before. Perhaps in a dream. Her brows drew together in a frowning line.

"Do you think we can be seen from here?" She threw a glance back at the road from which she had come.
 Michael shrugged. "No. But why?"

She plunged into her story.
 "Michael, there are men after you. Down in the village. They're badgers—detective shield—something like that. If he were guilty of some unnamed crime, he maintained a bland air. But hadn't he heard somewhere that criminals are like that?"

"Michael!" She felt a sudden fierce rage possess her. That he should be so calm, while she had rushed so madly to warn him! "Don't you understand?" she cried. "I rushed to tell you—so that you might get away."

"You did that?" His voice sounded odd, almost choked. He was staring at her strangely.
 "Yes, and you must run for it," she said on a note of relief and terror, now that he understood. "You mustn't let them get you. Have you any money? If you haven't, I can get some from my trunk. I'll drive you over to Harmon—the through trains stop there. You can start west."

"No matter what I've done or what I'm running away from?" he asked.
 "No matter what!" She was firm about that. There was not a single question in her mind, not an argument to be met. She, who had never broken a single law in all her 20 years, now advised this man to flee. It was as simple as that.

"Thank you, Katharine."
 It was the first time he had ever called her by her name in that way, naturally and simply. Her eyes, quite involuntarily, filled with tears. She turned away to hide them.

"Don't." That the old, old pain should be beginning again—why, that was unbearable. She had thought to conquer it for all time. "You're very good to me," he said, low-voiced. His lean, brown fingers closed over her wrist. Her hand lay in his clasp quite unresistingly. "It was the least I could do," she managed to say, in the silence.

"Can't tell you how it makes me feel," he went on, very gently. He had squared about now to face her. Unwillingly she lifted her eyes to his. There was a split second—and then she was in his arms, her face crushed against his shoulder, against the cloth of that worn tweed coat she knew and loved so well.

There was only this moment of weakness. Then the girl pulled herself away.
 "What can we be thinking of?" she cried. "I must—we both of us must be quite mad."

"Same for the first time in months," he said, the man dryly. "Let's face it, Katharine."
 "There's nothing to face," she said stubbornly. "I rush to tell you that you're in trouble, and both have a silly moment. That's all. You wait here, Michael. I'll dash back to town and get you some money. Then I'll drive you to the train."

He had her hand again in that cool, gentle, curiously strong grip. "I'm mad about you," he said. "You've got to hear it now. I've loved you for months."

"What are you saying? You're going to marry someone else?"
 The words were out. She hadn't meant to say them.

"Tell me you care a little, too, Katharine." His slate-gray eyes, with the laughter about them, were wooing, compelling her. "I can't. It—it wouldn't be true," she lied. But her eyes, her glowing cheeks told the truth. She was in his arms again, as if unwillingly.

Their lips met in that long first kiss which is the privilege of lovers. She sprang away.
 "Have you—have you kissed Sally Moon like that?" she demanded, panting in young fury.

"You know I haven't."
 "How do I know? The whole town's talking. You're engaged to her, aren't you?"

"You can't tell a girl, Michael. Katharine. It isn't in you. I wouldn't let you, anyhow."
 Her eyes blazed at him. "Oh, wouldn't you? Engagements have been broken before this. My face was dark; his eyes flashed stormy lightning.

Katharine wrung her hands together. "We're wasting time. Already those men are at the school, looking for you. What are we to do?"
 Michael's eyes held her. "You do love me a little, Katharine?" Her name was like a caress on his lips.

"Do you suppose," blazed the girl, "do you imagine for one single minute I'd be here if I didn't?" Her barriers were down now. She flung the words at him as if in furious anger.

include Allen Jenkins, Robert Barrat and Hobart Cavanaugh.
 "Whirlpool"

In support of Holt is Joyce, cast headed by John Arthur, including Donald Cook, Allen Jenkins, Lila Lee and John Miljan. Roy William Neill directed the film.

"Baboon"
 During the filming of their latest jungle thriller, "Baboon," now at the King's Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson helped a tribe of baboons to defend themselves against two murderous leopards. At least, they stood by ready to aid, Mrs. Johnson with gun to shoulder in case the baboons were worsted. During the battle, Johnson cranked his camera furiously.

"I had a strong inclination to shoot those two killers," says Mrs. Johnson. "Martin and I both like monkeys. They're pests sometimes, but they're really lovable and friendly beasts. I could have stopped the battle at once with my powerful rifle but Martin stopped me instead. He was right. One of the most dramatic scenes we ever photographed was being unfolded, and as long as the monkeys were deaf and quick enough to hold the big cats at bay it was to our advantage to get the pictures. It was, after all, the purpose of our trip. At the high point in the excitement, an unusual thing happened to the advantage of the two cinematographers. The boss baboon climbed up on a huge tree stump and gave a signal. Immediately, the baboon mothers grabbed their babies and with big muscles forming the roar guard, they began to vacate the village. With the leopards still pursuing, the baboons crossed a stream, escaping them, and took refuge in an adjoining forest."

"You Belong To Me"
 With the effusive, brilliant and always entertaining Lee Tracy in the lead role, Helen Mack, talented emotional actress; songbird Helen Morgan, and the newest candidate for juvenile acting honours, "David Holt," aged six, in the other featured roles, Paramount's "You Belong To Me"

"God help me, I do love you. And you're going to marry another woman. And there are detectives after you—I could get myself into a hideous mess like this, when there are millions of fine, decent men I might care for."

"You don't think I'm decent?"
 "How can you be?" she asked. "Engaged to one girl—making love to another. Running foul of the law. Why, I must be half mad to think of you, even."

"I adore you when you're, like this," the man exclaimed, staring down at her. "Once I thought you were so cool and aloof and now—"
 "Now? What do you think of me now, Michael Heathcote?"

"I think you're marvellous."
 Tall, fair-haired girl in white linen, lean, sun-tanned man in tweeds and riding boots, they faced each other almost like enemies. Katharine's breath came thick and fast; her blue eyes were wide and dark with excitement.

"Well then, if you think I'm marvellous," she taunted, "do something for me. Get away before those policemen catch you. I shouldn't like that. Nor Sally Moon either."

"I will, on one condition." His nearness was like strong wine to her. She had never felt so fiercely, pulsatingly alive. It was as if an electric current burned between them. "What's that, Michael Heathcote?"

"That you come along with me." "Why, you're insane..." But she could not stare him down. "You know I can't do such a thing." "Why not?"

She paused to consider this. There were a million reasons to advance against her going with this man—her home, her life, her training all pointed in the other direction. And yet—and yet—the years stretched out before her in an endless procession.

"I can't," she said dully. "And you know it."
 But it might be glorious, her inner self cried, to go off with him like this, without consideration or fear. Only she couldn't—she mustn't allow herself to be tempted.

He folded his arms. "Very well, then. I'll go back and see these rascals, whoever they are."
 "You can't do that," she cried. "You'll see whether I can or not."

"Michael, you're cruel. How dare you make such a condition? It's not fair or right. I've given you your chance to run for it. You're throwing it away."

"It's you who force me to it!" "I don't believe you mean it," she taunted. "You're just trying me, seeing how far you can go."

"Oh, am I?" asked the man, on a note of dangerous quiet. "If you believe that, then start your car and take me back to the village. I'm ready to see those fellows, whoever they may be."

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

SEQUEL TO FATAL QUARREL IN NEW TERRITORIES

A charge of manslaughter was brought against Chong Ma-chuen, a young Hkolo, when he appeared before Mr. G. S. Kennedy-Skipiton in the District Office South yesterday afternoon, in connection with the death of a comrade. The dead man was 1st Shi, and he was killed, it is alleged, by the accused during a quarrel in Hoi Shan Li, New Territories, on June 25.

Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution.

At a previous hearing, evidence was given by three other persons, including Tso Chung-tai, a young boy who stated he saw the assault.

The first witness called yesterday was Det. Sub-Inspector L. Whant, who deposed to having seen the deceased at the Kowloon Hospital before his death when he took a statement from him. He also testified to receiving note of deceased's death.

Evidence was given by Mak Yung, step-mother of the deceased. She stated that about 2 p.m. on June 25 she was informed that her son had been injured. As she was going to him, she met him by a ship-building yard, so she did not continue further. He was on board a boat, and his face was very pale. The boat had to cross the creek before he could reach home. Not being able to reach him, she went to look for him, and returned with him to their house, where deceased was found lying in bed. He was groaning, and complained of a pain in his side. Witness did not hear him tell of the assault, which he related to his father, as she was busy preparing medicine for him. She heard the father scold deceased, when he reproached him for damaging other people's boats, and injuring their crabs.

A Pick-Axe

Hearing her son say he had a pick-axe, she went to Hoi Shan Li to recover it, and received it from a man whose name she could not remember. She identified the axe produced in Court as the one she received. Witness could not recall seeing the axe handed to the Police, but said it was handed over by a small boy.

Deceased appeared normal the morning of the attack. Witness identified his body at the Kowloon Mortuary on June 29.

In reply to Mr. Kennedy-Skipiton, witness admitted that she had at first refused permission to the doctor to operate on deceased's body, but after a few minutes, consented.

Ip Cheung, husband of Mak Yung, and father of the deceased, next gave evidence. He said deceased was very well on the morning of the assault. His wife informed him of the assault, and on returning home he was informed by deceased that he had been assaulted by a Hkolo. Witness reported the matter to the Police, and was accompanied back home by a detective. He also identified the body at the Kowloon Mortuary on June 29.

Arrest Made

Acting Sub-Inspector W. E. Delahanty, officer-in-charge of Tai-O police-station, deposed to having received a report of the assault on June 25, as a result of which he sent a detective to deceased's home, who later brought accused back to the Station. Friends and relatives brought the injured man in. Witness himself later went to deceased's house, and also saw the removal of accused and deceased by launch to Tsimshatsui, under charge of Sergeant Wagland.

Evidence was also given by Leung Wing, the Chinese detective who was sent to deceased's home. He said he accompanied Ip Cheung, and on the way met Tso Chung-tai. They then went to Hoi Shan Li, where Tso pointed out the accused. Witness arrested him and took him to the house where deceased lay injured. There deceased pointed out the accused as the man who had assaulted him. Accused was taken to Tai-O Station, and witness was accompanied by A. S. I. Delahanty back to deceased's house.

Formal evidence was given by Sergeant L. J. Wagland, who testified to seeing the removal of accused and deceased to a police launch of which he had charge from Tai-O police-station. He also received the axe from Leung Wing.

Tam Wai-hin, sergeant interpreter, deposed to having read the charge

CORONER'S INQUEST

MAN DIES AFTER FALLING DOWN STAIRS

An open verdict was returned by Mr. Balfour when he conducted an inquiry at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, into the circumstances surrounding the death of Ngai Wah, aged 30, a building-suit contractor, who died as the result of injuries received through falling down the staircase of No. 14 Shanghai Street, first floor, on June 6.

The Coroner sat without a jury.

Dr. G. V. A. Griffiths, medical officer at the Kowloon Hospital, deposed that when deceased was admitted to hospital on the evening of June 6, he complained of numbness in the lower part of the trunk and lower limbs. Witness made an examination and found symptoms that the man was suffering from a broken neck. He died on June 8 and a post mortem examination was conducted on the body.

Apart from some bruising on various parts of the body there was a small bruise about the size of a ten-cent piece, on the right-knee-cap. There was a fracture of the skull about 4½ inches long on the right hand side at the back of the head. There was a large blood clot underlying this fracture, which was between the bone of the skull and the membrane, which surrounded the brain. There was a fractured dislocation of the third and fourth spinal column of the neck and also a fracture of the body of the fifth.

Cause of Death

Death in witness's opinion was due to shock and haemorrhage following these injuries.

The injuries could have been caused by falling from a small height. There were no marks in front of the body which might suggest deceased had been fighting before he fell.

Chan Yau, widow, stated that on June 6 she saw deceased at her house in the evening. Witness saw him sitting on a bed under the staircase with a man named Wong Ching. Witness's nephew, Wong Ping-yiu, was in the middle. Witness did not know anything had happened until deceased had fallen down the staircase.

Whilst on the floor witness did not hear any sounds of fighting, nor did she see a fight between Wong Ping-yiu and deceased. Witness came out of the kitchen to get some oil and went back again. About ten minutes later witness heard a noise on the staircase and when she came out she found that deceased had fallen down the stairs. At that time Wong Ping-yiu was still in the middle, but he came out and went to deceased's assistance and sent for a rickshaw to take him to the hospital.

The next day Wong Ping-yiu went away and had not been heard of since. He gave no reason for going away.

Quarrel and Fight

Chief-Detective-Inspector A. J. W. Dooling (Kowloon), testified that in consequence of a message received from first witness he went to the Kowloon Hospital where he saw Ngai Wah, whom he questioned through an interpreter. Deceased told witness that he visited Wong Ping-yiu at No. 14 Shanghai Street on the evening of June 6, and that he had asked for some money, which had been refused. Deceased also stated that there had been a quarrel which was followed by blows and during the exchange of blows he fell down the stairs.

Witness visited the house but saw no signs of a struggle or any marks on the staircase.

After hearing the evidence the Coroner said, "I return an open verdict. Death was caused by falling down the staircase of No. 14 Shanghai Street. There is no evidence to show how he came to fall."

of manslaughter to accused through Li Shing, a Chinese detective, and to cautioning him. A statement was made by accused in which he said he was deceased away from his (accused) house, but deceased returned a few hours later. Accused denied having quarrelled with him.

After formal evidence by Li Shing, the accused was committed to stand his trial at the August Criminal Sessions, after stating that he had nothing to say and had no witnesses to call.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS

LORRY CRASHES INTO SHOP IN WYNDHAM STREET

The front of a vacant shop at 25A Wyndham Street was completely smashed when a motor lorry crashed into it shortly before 4.30 p.m. yesterday.

The glass of both show windows was smashed to smithereens, the framework was broken, and the iron grille was also torn away. The lorry was hardly damaged.

The vehicle at the time was carrying a load comprising planks of wood, furniture and parts of a lathe, for a shop in D'Agular Street, and was to have been parked at the top end of Wyndham Street parallel to the steps leading from Wyndham Street down to D'Agular Street.

Tsang Kang, driver of the lorry, a Ford, No. 785, in a report at the Central Police Station stated that he was driving eastward along Wyndham Street and when turning opposite the Dairy Farm had swerved to avoid a pedestrian. The vehicle skidded and the front portion mounted the pavement and crashed into the shop.

The impact was accompanied by a terrific noise of splintered glass. Fortunately no person was hurt.

An Acting Sub-Inspector Brittain and Sergeant Clarke, of the Traffic Department, arrived on the scene later and when the load was taken off, A. S. I. Brittain drove the lorry off the pavement.

The shop, which is next door to Messrs. O. K. Gidumal and Wadumull, exporters, was formerly occupied by the Deb Feng Company and has been vacant for about two months. Damage to the shop premises is estimated at $135.

Kowloon Mischaps

Pang Ngau, aged 20, has reported to the police at Mongkok that while driving a private car, 3211, along Canton Road near the junction of Argyle Street, a girl named Yung Ngan-mui, aged six years, suddenly ran across the road in front of the car and was struck by the right front mudguard. She sustained injuries and was sent to the Kwong Wah Hospital for treatment.

Ng Kwai, of 2330 Canton Road, in a report to the police at Tsimshatsui stated that while driving public car 479 along Canton Road, and when passing Hongkong Road, a coolie, Chan Kai-chol, 40, ran in front of the vehicle and was hit by the mudguard. He was sent to the Kowloon Hospital suffering from injuries stated to be not very serious.

Dr. Woo Kang, D. Litt., Dean of the College of Arts of the National Sun Yat Sen University, has been invited to become an honorary member of the Greater India Society, of Calcutta, which is interested in the study of the civilizations of China and India, and how the two countries can co-operate culturally.

The Greater India Society wants to exchange publications with the Sun Yat Sen University and to know about educational plans and progress in China.

Other foreign educational institutions are also interested in educational development in China. Professor Shepotof of the University of Caucasus at Tiflis wrote to Dean Woo and requested him to let him know of books on Chinese civilization, especially relating to Confucian philosophy, as his own University has no works on this subject. WANCHAI BULLIES

ALLEGED MEMBER OF GANG CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

An alleged triad society which carried on a racket of "squeezing" money, by threats of violence, from prostitutes in the Wanchai District, was mentioned in a case before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, when a man was charged with assault.

The defendant, Tam Pi, unemployed, a diminutive fellow, who began crying before the proceedings actually commenced, was charged with having assaulted two women, Leung Luk and Li Tat, on the nights of July 7 and 8 in Wanchai, and a tailor, Lau Wai-man, on the night of July 9.

According to Detective Sergeant Fitcher, the two women were formerly prostitutes, but of late were being kept by sailors, and lived at different addresses. The defendant was formerly a pimp working for the women, and they used to pay him and his gang a certain amount of money.

From the time the women had ceased being prostitutes they had not been able to afford paying money to the defendant and his gang, who repeatedly threatened them with assault if they did not pay up.

Assaulted With Hammers

On the night of July 7, the two women were walking in Jaffe Road when they were assaulted by the defendant and about eight others. They made a report to the Police, and gave the names of some of their assailants. On the following night at Lockhart Road they were again assaulted by the defendant and his gang, with hammers and stones, and again reported the matter to the Police.

On the night of July 9, the third complainant, who was a tailor with a shop formerly in Lockhart Road, was assaulted by the defendant and his gang. The complainant had removed his shop to the Central District because he was continuously harassed by the gang. Apparently, tailors who catered for prostitutes in Wanchai had also to pay a certain amount of "squeeze" to people like the defendant, and if they did not pay, they were "beaten up."

The complainant, on the night in question, had returned to Wanchai, presumably to collect some money from his customers, when he met the defendant and his gang. They asked him for money, and he refused. They then assaulted him with hammers and stones, and defendant was alleged to have struck him with a shoe-horn. The gang then ran away, and complainant made a report, naming defendant and two others.

IRISH DISORDERS

PROTEST AGAINST SEIZURE OF CATTLE

Cork, July 16.
Women rioters and farmers joined in demonstrations at Macroom, attacking all those who failed to comply with demands to close their houses and shops in sympathy with the protests against the seizures of cattle for non-payment of annuities.—United Press.

Six Killed in Belfast

Belfast, July 16.
Flames are reddening Belfast this morning.
The rioting was renewed after midnight and shops and homes were looted.

The Police fired several volleys over the heads of the crowds, but failed to check them. They stoned the police in reply.

Armoured cars were called out and patrolled all night, but the demonstrators succeeded in setting fire to three houses in the York and Patrick Streets districts.

Six people have been killed and over seventy seriously injured have been removed to hospital.—United Press.

The Police, seeing that all the assaults were apparently the work of the same gang, went out, but the defendant only was caught. The two women saw the defendant in custody in the street, and they also went to the Police Station and identified him as one of the men who had assaulted them on the previous nights. The defendant took the Police out to trace the other assailants, but they could not be found.

Ugly Bruise Marks

Evidence was given by the two women, who deposed to having been assaulted with hammers and stones. They stated that the defendant and his gang had come to their house, and demanded $40 from them, and when they refused threatened them with assault. Both women, further, showed Mr. Schofield several ugly bruises on their arms, as testimony of the assault.

The tailor also bore marks on his body, and a wound on the head. He said the defendant and his gang had demanded $28 of him. When he refused they had threatened to assault him. That was in December last year, and since then he had removed his shop to the Central District.

All the witnesses identified the defendant as one of their assailants.

The hearing of the case was then adjourned until to-morrow morning for further evidence.

Belfast, July 16.
There have been further grave disturbances, more bloodshed and rioting here, sequel to the clashes of last Saturday and Sunday when five were killed following a parade commemorating the Battle of the Boyne. Troops have once again been called into action.

This latest disorder came when hidden marksmen fired on the funeral procession which was carrying the coffins of the men killed in the earlier fighting.

It was an amazing and distressing scene. The huge procession was passing through the notorious York Street when shots came from the concealed gunmen. The crowd spotted their hiding-place, however, and made a rush upon the building on whose roof and in whose windows they had their stations.

What went on in the building it is impossible to ascertain. Whether the crowd caught any of the gunmen is not known.

A strong detachment of the Border Regiment, which saw fighting Sunday, was rushed to the area. With fixed bayonets, supported by extra police, they came at the double from their lorries. They fought off the mob which was milling around the snipers' refuge. Ambulance men carried off a number of wounded youths.

Police then drove into the crowd in "cage" cars and made room for the fire brigade which hurried to the scene when clouds of smoke were seen rising from two buildings. The crowd had set light to them believing them to conceal snipers.

LOYAL CROWD

While the firemen worked, and police and soldiers searched for riflemen, the crowd stood in the street and sang "God Save the King" at the top of its voice. An armoured car stood at one end of the street, its machine guns trained over the heads of the people upon windows which might suddenly frame a gunman.

The authorities are prepared for any emergency and the troops are making a diligent search for gunmen over the roofs of the houses and buildings in the locality. It is believed that a strong display of force has quelled any further possibility of disturbances.—Reuter.

CAMPBELL BLACK TO MAKE FLIGHT

AMBITIOUS PROJECTS

The Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, July 17, 11 a.m.

London, July 17.

An ambitious schedule of record-breaking flight is in process of preparation for the near future by the famous British airman, Campbell Black.

It is expected that within the next few days he will test his new Comet Special, a racing machine similar to that in which he and his companion, Scott, won the England to Australia air derby.

He plans to fly to Capetown from England and back, and across the Atlantic, Ireland to Newfoundland, in a single hop.

He also proposes to fly from London to Hongkong.—Reuter Special.

WAR PILOT

Campbell Black, after serving in the R.A.F. during the war, took up commercial flying and became one of the pioneers of air travel in Central Africa. In 1929, he performed what was then a remarkable feat by flying from Capetown to Nairobi, 5,000 miles, in eight days, and by October, 1934, he had flown between London and Nairobi no fewer than thirteen times.

T. Campbell Black, the noted British airman, who is planning a record-breaking flight from London to Hongkong in the near future.

With his friend, C. W. A. Scott, he entered for the England-Melbourne air race with a De Havilland "D.H. Comet" machine, one of three specially made for the race. Flying non-stop to Bagdad, the airman went on to Singapore (7,050 miles), arriving 49 hours after the start.

On the next stage of the flight over the Timor Sea, one of their engines broke down, but they struggled on and in 2 days 4 hours after leaving England they were in Port Darwin (9,417 miles). Completing the flight with one engine, they reached Melbourne (11,323 miles) in 2 days 23 hours, more than halving the record and winning the first prize of £10,000.

RUSSIAN FLIGHT

Moscow, July 17.
It is learned officially that three Soviet pilots, among them George Levanakay, one of the rescue-aimen of the Chelouskin expedition, will attempt to fly from Moscow to San Francisco via the North Pole, Wilkes Island, Port Simon, and Vancouver, B.C. when weather permits.

This dangerous undertaking will be watched with keenest interest, for it may lead to a tremendous shortening of distance in air travel from Europe to America.—United Press.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FLEET REVIEWED

STRIKING SCENES OFF SPITHEAD

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, July 17, 8.30 a.m.)

ABOARD H.M.S. ROYAL SOVEREIGN, July 16.

In blazing sunshine, traditional "King's weather," His Majesty to-day stood on the bridge of the royal yacht, the Victoria and Albert, and with three of his sons took the salute of Britain's mighty war fleet off Spithead.

An area of eleven square miles was filled with an orderly array of 157 warships and one hundred other gallantly beflagged vessels.

His Majesty the King, with a keen naval-trained eye, swept the review as the royal yacht steamed through the avenues of grey, low-lying hulls, while the ships' companies manned the warships' sides and cheered lustily, and the roaring planes of the Fleet Air Arm dived low in salute.

It was an Imperial occasion. The Duke of Gloucester saluted his father as the King's yacht steamed past the cruiser Australia, one of the vessels of the fleet of the far Dominion.

India was represented by the sloop Indus, future flagship of the Royal Indian Navy, Canadian, New Zealand and South African officers were among the Grand Fleet's personnel.

Unprecedentedly large crowds lined miles of the sea-front and remained until after nightfall for the searchlight display and illumination of the Fleet. It was a striking display.

To-morrow His Majesty, aboard the Victoria and Albert, will lead the Fleet into mimic battle.—Reuter Special.

STUPENDOUS DISPLAY

Portsmouth, July 16.
Wearing undress naval uniform and looking keen and fit, His Majesty the King stood on the bridge of the Royal Yacht, Victoria and Albert, when she left Portsmouth this afternoon to begin the great review of the Fleet.

As the yacht steamed out of the harbour His Majesty saw the long lines of his battle fleet stretching away into the distance, and the hosts of pleasure craft and merchant vessels scattered to the horizon. Hundreds of thousands watched the royal yacht's progress.

Before starting the review the King assumed command of his Fleet. Three of his sailor sons, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and the Duke of Kent, stood beneath the Victoria and Albert's bridge. The Duke of Gloucester watched for the King's coming from the cruiser Australia.

THUNDEROUS SALUTE

It was a grand spectacle when eighteen capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers fired a royal salute of twenty-one guns. And as the thunder of their firing rolled away, and the smoke of the explosions cleared, first in a thin stream of sound, then in swelling volume, the music of "God Save the King" came rolling from the sea, played by the bands of 100 warships.

Along the decks of the fighting craft long lines of Marines and blackjackets stood at the "present" and the sun glinted on the burnished bayonets.

After the royal yacht had reached her moorings, the King held a reception in tribute to the democracy of the sea. His Majesty received alike the commanders of famous liners and the skippers of the fishing trawlers. Commodore of famous passenger liners and (Continued on Page 7.)

Washington, July 17.

The powerful bloc of Silver Senators has decided to offer new legislation designed to make mandatory the purchase of newly-mined silver until the Government's reserves reach a total of one-quarter of the entire monetary stocks, or until the price reaches $1.29 an ounce.

Senator Patrick McCarran has withheld the details of the proposal, but indicated that it would be pressed this session despite the desire for an early adjournment.

"It was the consensus of opinion at the meeting that definite silver monetisation should be effected as soon as possible," said Senator McCarran.

He added that the agricultural sections of the country were behind the move.

"It has been noted that when the price of silver has gone up our exports of agricultural products have also risen," he said.—Reuter.

WOMEN TEACHERS MAY MARRY

London, July 16.

The London County Council to-day by a vote of 76 to 34, approved of the removal of the bar against women teachers and doctors being employed after marriage.

This rule has been in force since 1923. The only exceptions to the new regulations will be in certain cases of residential appointments, where unmarried women only will be employed.—Reuter Special.

Charles Laughton's Narrow Escape

JANET GAYNOR INJURED

Charles Laughton, the actor, had a narrow escape from drowning in the sea, near Hollywood, while taking part in a film.

Production was in progress on board a ship, off the isthmus of Santa Catalina Island, while a big sea was running, and the ship was suddenly thrown heavily by the swell.

Laughton, who at that moment, in the role of captain, was bellowing orders to his men in the rigging, was thrown from his feet and sent rolling across the deck and over the side of the ship, where a portion of railing had been removed.

Fortunately the actor fell on to a platform built out over the water for the camera crew, and one of the technicians caught him and saved him. Beyond a few bruises he was not injured.

JANET GAYNOR'S FALL

While chasing a celt during a scene from "Way Down East," which is being filmed at Santa Cruz, Janet Gaynor, the film actress, tripped and fell, then fainted. Suffering from slight concussion, and an unspecified internal injury, she was ordered to remain in bed for a week.

COLLEEN MOORE'S DIVORCE PLEA

Colleen Moore, the film actress, has filed an action for divorce from her husband, Mr. Albert Parker Scott, the New York broker, says Reuter from Los Angeles. She charges him with a harsh attitude and "systematic avoidance."

Colleen Moore, who is 33, married Mr. Scott in February, 1932. She entered films as long ago as 1917, with a contract in the old Griffith Fine Arts Company. She has played in more recent times in "Lilac Time," "The Power and the Glory," and "The Social Register."

Her hobbies are yachting, fishing, and a doll's house, for which she has collected furnishings from all over the world.

CONTINENTAL STAR

The services of the noted Continental stage and film star, Liane Haid, have been secured for the forthcoming "A.T.P." production "Whom the Gods Love," based on the life of Mozart.

Basil Dean, John Loder, Victoria Hopper, and Stephen Haggard will soon be leaving London for Vienna, where, with the co-operation of the Austrian authorities, many of the scenes will be shot.

Austrian by birth, Liane Haid has many times starred on her native stage and in both Austrian and German films. She acted in British films in the silent days.

GARIBALDI FILM

One of the most important productions in the current Paramount schedule will be a picture based on the life of Garibaldi, the great Italian hero.

The studio has employed E. Alexander Powell, war correspondent, intelligence officer, historian, and an authority on Garibaldi, to prepare the screen play.

No player has been chosen for the title role, although Tullio Car-

MADE OF STRING

Beret, Necklace And Knitted Bag

IN NATURAL COLOUR

All made of String! String in its natural colour, or in any bright shade, is crocheted and knitted into various things this season. Here you see a beret, a halo cap, a necklace, a pochette, a buttonhole, and brown crepe, worn with beige gloves.

FASHION NOTES

MANY dresses still show the high neckline. At the back the line in some cases is a sharp V, a very low V. There are many sailor collars to be seen, many bertha and some wide, round Eton collars.

Some coats have practically no collars, and some have collars that are upstanding about three inches at the back.

Lapels on coats are much wider, often faced with the lining of the coat or the fabric of the blouse beneath the coat.

Coat and dress backs are very full as a rule. Sometimes the fullness starts at the nape of the neck, in gathers and pleats, sometimes from a yoke.

Skirts are of every kind and every variety—straight and slit, very full, circular, or pleated on a yoke.

Sometimes the fullness is all the way round, and to top this kind of skirt there is usually a tight-fitting bodice with a high neckline and buttoned down the front, and long, tight-fitting sleeves.

Sleeves are either very full, bell, puffed, gathered, varying in length from just above the elbow to just above the wrist.

Millinery

Hats have undergone an important change this season. There are three schools of thought, one which still sets the hat on the head with a forward tilt towards the left side; another, whose hats are all worn at the back of the head; and the third, worn straight on the head.

minati is said to be under consideration.

HAROLD LLOYD ACTIVE

After 12 years as the independent producer of his own pictures, Harold Lloyd has temporarily left that field, and signed a contract with Paramount to star in "The Milky Way." Leo McCarey will direct, from an original screen play.

After completing the picture he will return to his independent activities.

NO "WAR TRUST"

QUAKER'S DENIALS TO COMMISSION

FACTORIES IN HIGHLANDS

A Quaker, Mr. J. T. Walton Newbold, gave evidence before the Royal Commission on the Private Manufacture of, and Trade in, Arms, at Middlesex Guildhall, recently.

Mr. Newbold said that he spoke as a private citizen who had made a study of the problem in all its manifold ramifications at home and abroad for a period of 23 years.

Detailed studies had compelled him to reject the theory that the manufacturers of war material were in any serious sense contributory factors in the promotion of war scares. Research had upset in his mind the earlier impression of the existence of a "war trust."

"I can hand in to you," said Mr. Newbold, "the reports of the case tried in the Imperial Courts of Japan about 1910 regarding an Admiral who was found guilty of taking bribes from the shipyard manager at Barrow-in-Furness of Vickers (Limited). It is the only proven case of bribery which I have ever been able to find out."

"It showed that whatever were the close relations required by His Majesty's Admiralty and War Department to be maintained here at home between Vickers and Armstrong-Whitworth & Co., they were most fiercely competing in Japan. It was not a case of bribing to get a battleship built, but of bribing to get the contract away from a rival British firm."

Speaking of newspapers, Mr. Newbold said it was his impression that the newspapers which advocated the increase of aeroplanes or the peace ballot were disinterested, but that they published very little which would not attract and retain customers.

VERY LITTLE VALUE

"Except for those newspapers which publish special supplements and have a wide sale abroad, the custom of the arms manufacturers in their new role of advertisers is of very little value."

Mr. Newbold drew the Commission's attention to the fact that a considerable part of the armament plant in this country was located in areas vulnerable to air attack. There was need for an immense overhaul of the existing means of manufacture. He doubted whether the capital would be made available by the money market for the transfer of plant and labour to the West Coast in other areas beyond Birmingham and Sheffield. For commercial demands, the existing equipment was at least adequate, but the peril of explosions caused by aerial attacks required that a non-economic reserve of plants should be provided.

"Factories with the machinery already in, waiting only the movement into them of workers from the nearest centres by rail, road, and motor bus, should be provided in every Pennine dale, in every Scottish Glen, and in every Welsh valley at once," he said.

Sir Philip Gibbs (a member of the Commission) asked Mr. Newbold whether he thought there was nothing in the nature of an "arms ring" in existence.

Mr. Newbold replied that he thought probably the authorities preferred the closest collaboration in tackling matters between firms in certain lines of the manufacture.

The Chairman—Can you give us any information as to whether there is any international ring today of armaments manufacturers, or of firms producing the essential materials of armament construction?—I would say there is no world ring. There are certain signs of local rings.

WOMAN DIES AFTER RIOTOUS ASSEMBLY

Exciting scenes marked the conclusion of a Fascist meeting at Bootle, near Liverpool, when a woman collapsed and died in the crowd. She was Mrs. Frances Evans (48), of Senforth Street, Bootle, mother of seven children. She had gone to the meeting, which was in the open air in Church View, near her home, in order to fetch four of her children. She joined the crowd and there were lively scenes and some disturbances at question time. As the Fascists went to their van at the close, Mrs. Evans was found on the ground, and immediately a cry went up from the crowd.

The crowd rushed at the van as it went away, and followed it to the Fascist headquarters in Strand Road. Within a few minutes every window in the building had been smashed by stones.

Police arrived in motor cars and cleared the crowd, but early this morning groups of people remained discussing the affair near the house of the dead woman.

ALIENS IN AMERICA

OLD AGE PENSION

Washington.

Senate legislative attorneys announced recently that aliens would be taxed the same as others and would be eligible to receive federal old age pensions under the Administration's Social Security programme as now drafted.

The federal system would not become effective until about five years after passage of the legislation.

State pension programmes, under which the federal government would contribute to old age funds, would start operating soon after approval of the law by President Roosevelt. Under this system States could determine their own eligibility requirements and could make non-citizenship a cause for refusing pensions.

Under the proposed permanent federal pension system, wages would be taxed and the amounts paid to a worker in his old age would depend on the amount he and his employer had contributed through taxes. Administration experts who assisted in drafting the programme explained they felt no distinction should be made between citizens because if aliens were excluded it would tend to encourage companies to employ alien labour.

which Mrs. Evans was taken, a reporter was informed that there were no external marks of violence on the woman. It is understood that she died from natural causes, and a further examination is to be made.

When Mrs. Evans was found lying in the crowd, her husband, realising her serious condition, went for a priest, who attended her.

MAKING FITTER BRITAIN

Eminent medical men, a former headmaster of Harrow, and representatives of practically every youth organisation in the country are to serve on the Central Council of Recreative Physical Training, which has been formed in an effort to make a "Fitter Britain."

The King and Queen have consented to give their patronage, and Viscount Astor is president, while the Board of Education is closely to co-operate with the Council.

A brief announcement of the formation of the Council was made in the House of Commons yesterday.

day by Mr. H. Ramsbottom, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, who said it was entirely non-official. Later a statement was issued by the Board.

Physical training—to assist Jubilee Trust—organisers, sports leaders, and others connected with voluntary organisations in all parts of the country have been approached with regard to the survey. It will be necessary to complete this in a short time, as it is intended, with the data in hand, to assist the trustees of King George's Jubilee Trust by submitting definite proposals for the co-ordination and development of recreative physical activities of young people of post-school age.

Contracts have already been made with various organisations and, through them, with hundreds of thousands engaged in some form of recreative physical training.

The object of the Central Council is to help to improve the physical and mental health of the community through the development of facilities for recreative physical activities.

It is hoped, as soon as possible, to have a headquarters and staff of men and women ready to keep in touch with groups and individuals, to assist in the organisation

and extension of local branches in districts which have few facilities; and to co-operate with bodies who are already providing for the training of leaders.

The organising secretaries of the Central Council are Mr. H. A. Cole (Chief Organiser of Physical Training, Sheffield) and Miss P. S. Colson (Ling Association.)

The Council will work in the closest co-operation with the British Game and Sports Association, which represents National Games Associations as a whole and many youth organisations.

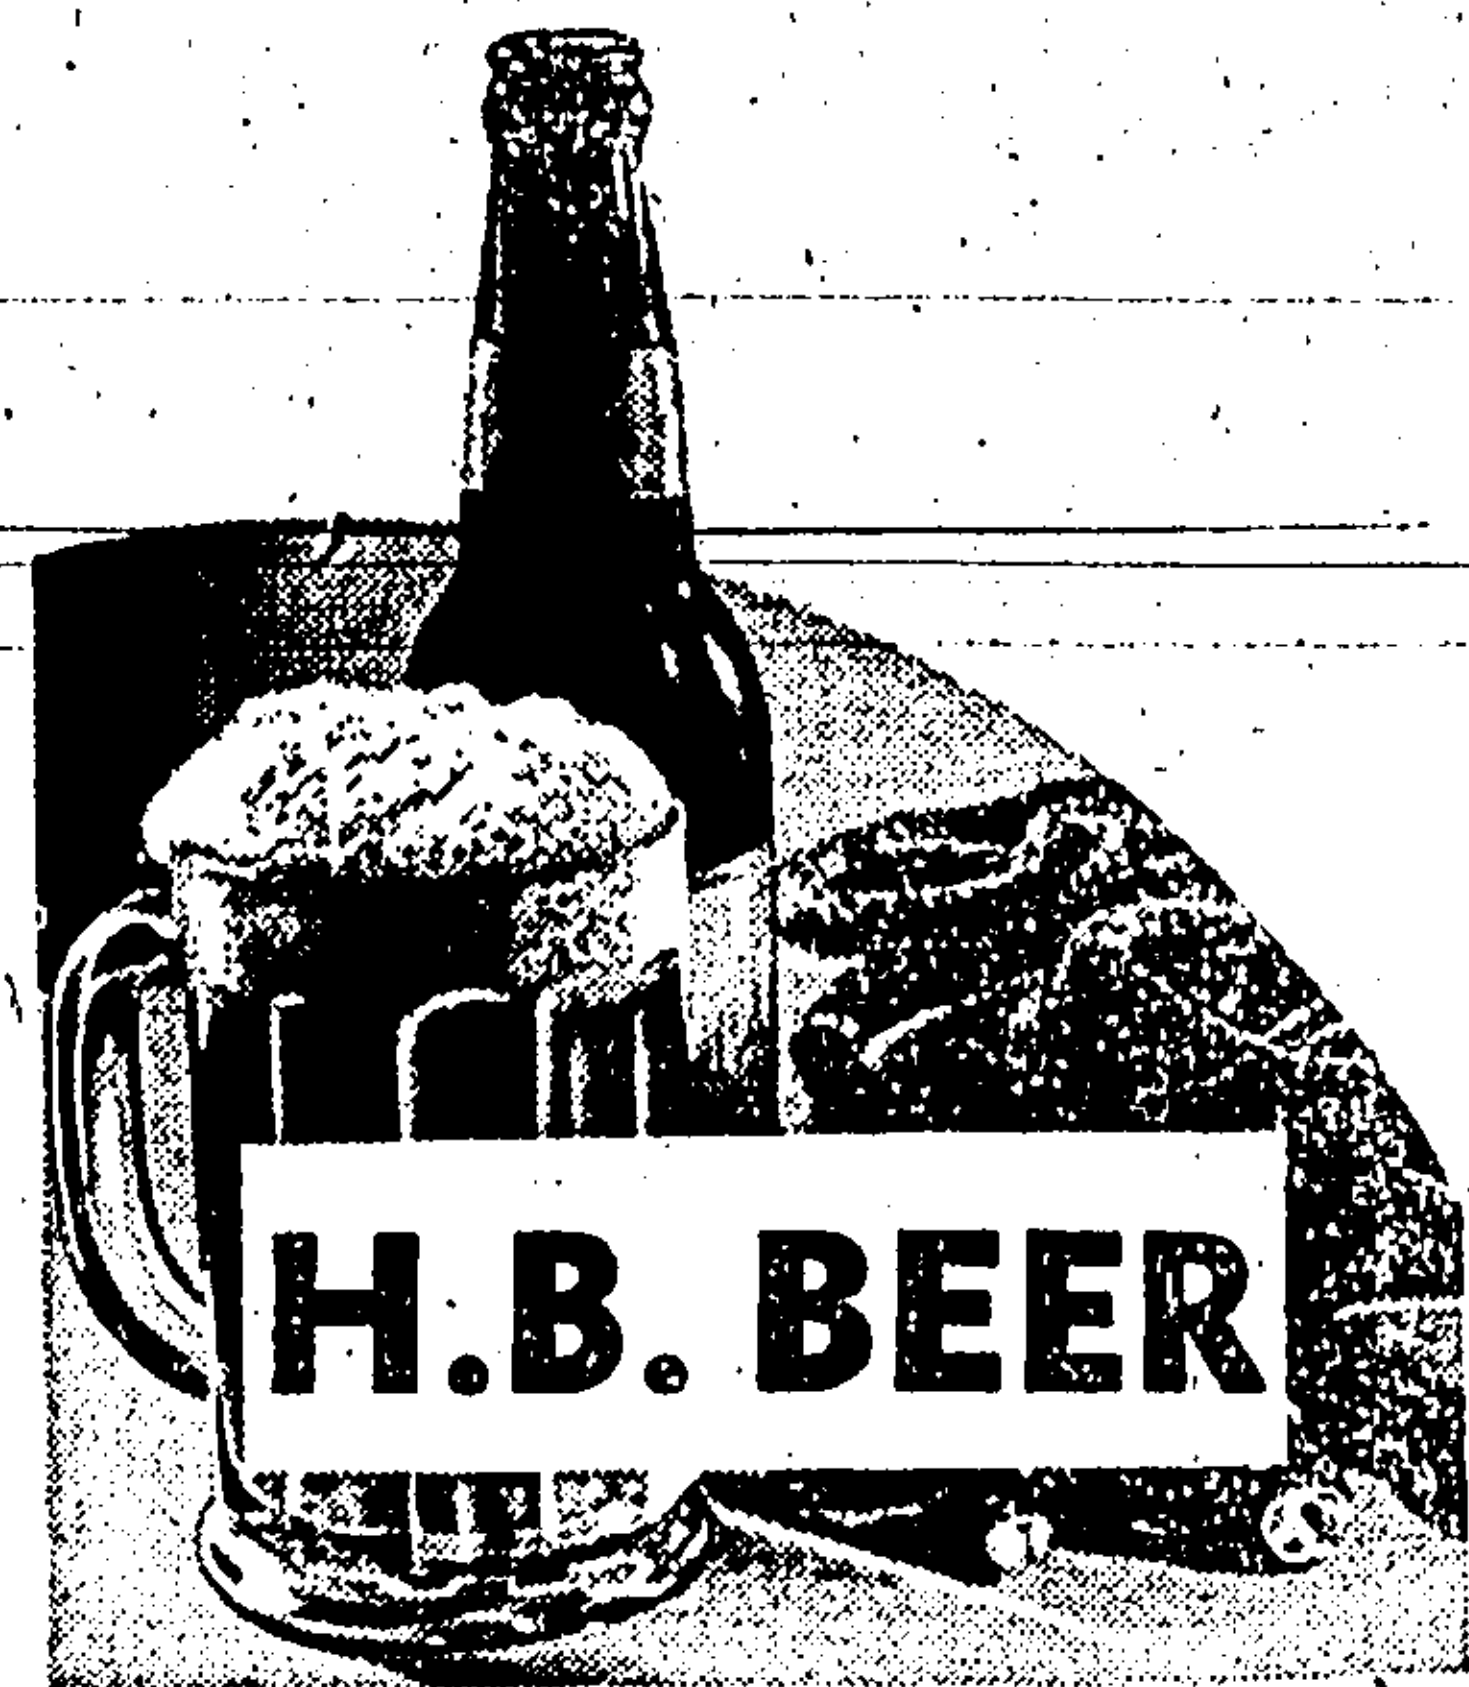

A representative Committee was appointed by the Council of the British Medical Association last January to consider and report upon the necessity for the cultivation of the physical development of the civilian population, and the methods to be pursued for that object. The Committee are not expected to report until early next year.

What difference does it make anyway. There's too much class distinction at schools. If an ex-Diocesan Girls' scholar says "I were going down the road," what business is it of a C.B.S. scholar to put her right and say, "You was going down the road."

Probably all the time the man was telling lies and he never even seen the road. All me eye, that's what it is.

NEW YORK STOCK

EXCHANGE

MARKET DOWNWARD YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Stocks to-day declined slightly due to traders being on the side-line pending some definite indication when Congress will adjourn. The ruling by the Boston Circuit Court that the Processing Tax was unconstitutional provided the feature for the day although it had no effect on stocks. The announcement, however, caused a decline in sugar and cotton, but it failed to break commodities as had been anticipated, due to the fact that traders were inclined to await the result of a test case before the Supreme Court. Bonds were irregular. The market was under the influence of the Boston Court's decision against the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: Cotton: The market was under the influence of the Boston Court's decision. Consequently, trading was not active. An estimate of the Brazilian crop indicates 1,361,000 bales. Wheat: There are further reports of rust damage both here and in Canada, but prospective damage appears high enough pending actual figures. The mill markets were firm. Corn: The market remains unchanged. Rubber: The Trade was selling on lower London offerings and the lack of buying orders by consumers. The market remains under the influence of disappointing statistics. Sugar: Although prices were easier on the Court decision regarding the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the action of the market was relatively good as there was no undue pressure at any time, indicating the actual technical position. Some action by Cuba to prevent pressure in actuals is not unlikely.

AN APPEAL FOR SPORTSMANSHIP

True sportsmen of all races
will endorse the outspoken appeal
made by His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government at the Football Association meeting on Monday,
when he denounced misconduct
on the field of play and urged
that players and spectators alike
should do all in their power to prevent a repetition of the unseemly incidents which marred
so many matches last season.
As Sir Thomas Southern remarked, not only are such incidents a serious reflection on sporting instincts, but they bring
disgrace to the players concerned
and to football generally. The standard of football in Hongkong is so high that it is all the
more regrettable that the game
should be made to suffer by reason of players allowing their
tempers to get out of hand in their anxiety to get the better
of the other fellow. Rivalry can be as keen as the most ardent enthusiast could wish, so long as it
is healthy rivalry, based on due
regard for the rules of the game
and a determination not to resort
to questionable tactics. In the heat of the moment, there is an
ever-present temptation to relax
control of tempers, and occasions
will arise when it is not easy to keep the game clean, but the true
sportsman is one who spurns to
stoop to dirty play, no matter
how great the provocation may
be. To put it no higher, such tactics do not pay in the long run. Players are not alone to blame for incidents which occur;
in many cases, they are egged on
and incited by partisan spectators who want their team to win
at all costs. In England, it is not uncommon for a ground to be suspended when the home spectators get out of hand, thus inflicting a financial loss on the Club concerned. Here in Hongkong, it would be difficult to follow this practice, as not all the
clubs have their own grounds
and spectators make a point of following their particular favourites, wherever the venue
may be. None the less, this matter of unruly behaviour by
football fans is one which needs
to be taken into consideration
and, if possible, steps should be taken to deal with the evil. The new season will soon be starting
in Hongkong, and we would
make an urgent appeal to Clubs,
in the interests of clean sport,
to take special steps with a view

NOTES OF THE DAY

October, 1931.—Arbitration:
Paraguayan and Bolivian ministers
meet in Washington to attempt
settlement of Chaco boundary dispute by arbitration.
July, 1932.—War: A state of war
exists between Paraguay and Bolivia and both governments are
on a war footing.
May, 1933.—Death: Bolivia and Paraguay fight for eleven months;
50,000 men killed.
June, 1934.—Depression: Warfare brings economic depression to
both Bolivia and Paraguay. Cash benefits go to foreign munitions
makers.
April, 1935.—Exhaustion: Wary
armies face each other along 200-
mile front with indications fighting
will continue till one or the other
nation collapses.
June, 1935.—Arbitration: Bolivia
and Paraguay sign peace protocol,
putting end to their fighting.
Gran Chaco dispute now to be settled by arbitration.
And now the Italo-Abyssinia dispute takes the same road, with the failure of arbitration; a road which leads through a nightmare of slaughter and misery, pestilence
and waste, to exhaustion, chaos,
revolution, disillusion. A thousand years hence professors may teach
six-year-olds how the "Progressive Age Man" knew too much to learn.

Lord Lothian, in suggesting
federation as a means to world
peace, has sown seed bound
ultimately to yield a fruitful
harvest. The only final remedy
for war, Lord Lothian said at Lincoln's Inn Fields, London,
recently, "is the federation of nations. It need not begin on a world scale. It could begin among
like-minded nations who were prepared to pool their sovereignty in supernational affairs and unite
under a constitution which created
a government which would be sovereign in the supernatural field though unable to interfere in the national field, and to claim obedience and some taxes from every individual for it." Lord Lothian
did not develop the question of
where such a federation could most appropriately start. It may be difficult to imagine France and Germany, linking themselves together in a relationship of the kind. On the other hand if Germany were left out and linking
began say with France and Russia,
it might be equally difficult to prevent reversion to some such system of alliances as that from which Europe suffered grievously
in pre-war days.

CANADIAN'S IDEA

There are, however, other parts
of the world where the obstacles
to be overcome might be eventually
less formidable. The late Prof.
Goldwin Smith of Toronto, 35 years
ago, thought along lines parallel to those followed by Lord Lothian.
Professor Smith advocated closer
political co-operation between Ottawa and Washington as a means
of avoiding the obvious economic disadvantages of the cutting of the North American continent into two
by a high tariff wall. Other examples of groupings of international interests of a purely utilitarian nature undoubtedly exist. Far Eastern developments
of late years have emphasised this fact where defence is concerned in regard to all the English-speaking
peoples whose territories abut
upon the Pacific Ocean. Another group of mutual inter-relationships
has come into prominence since 1932 with Britain's adoption of tariffs. It embraces the Indus-
trialised masses of the United Kingdom on the one side and the agricultural communities of the Scandinavian and Iberian penin-
sulas on the other. The world may still be far from such political
amalgamations as those to which these considerations point. Nevertheless it may not be without significance that a statesman of
eminence should indicate the potentialities for peace latent in progressively developing federations
of a political sort.

to preventing a recurrence of the
trouble experienced last year.
Individual Clubs could do a very great deal in this direction by devising their own system of discipline to be applied to players
when found guilty of misconduct, irrespective of such action as the Association may feel compelled to take. If players were warned before the season started, that such a system
would be put into force, they would perhaps think twice before
risking their future and the future of their club by succumb-
ing to the temptation to indulge
in bad sportsmanship. Action
on these lines, coupled with relentless punishment of the guilty by the Association, would soon stamp out the worst features of the game and elevate
local football to the position
which is its due.

GENERAL ELECTION

By OLIVER BALDWIN
(Socialist, and son of Britain's Conservative Prime Minister).

In Westminster there is great
talk of the forthcoming election and much speculation as to its date and results.

So far, however, nothing concrete has emerged, for the simple reason that the controllers of our parliamentary destiny have not yet
weighed up the pros and cons.

It is likely, however, that when
the House rises the Prime Minister
will go abroad for a well-earned
rest and that the final decision to hold an election will not be made
till September.

There will then be two alternatives before the Government.
Either to go to the country at the end of October, in order to forestall
a possible winter increase in unemployment, which may well follow
France's possible departure from
the gold standard; or to produce
a hopeful Budget in the spring and
bear it on their standards to the polls. The national crisis will be
"Danger from foreign invasion,"
"Increased tariffs," and "Returning prosperity."

The last cry will probably be the most effective, for everyone will
have forgotten by then that our
increased exports which have so
benefited trade are the direct result
of our departure from the gold
standard, to prevent which the original National Government was formed.

We are an illogical and forgetful
people, and therefore it will be safe
to credit our Government with the
beneficial consequences of a pound
sterling well below gold par.

Opposed to the National Government candidates will be both Labour and Liberal. The cry of the former will be "Preparation for Peace," rather than "Preparation
for War," and the latter party will expound on the iniquities of the tariff system.

As an adjunct to the National
campaign will be the appeal to Fear, which is such a safe card to play on our liberty-loving and loyal people.

They will be told, and quite
rightly, that if a Socialist Government comes into power there will be a financial panic. They will not
be told to wonder how or why it is
engineered, nor what would happen
if they paid no attention to it.
Neither will they be told that if
Mr. MacDonald had suspended the Bank Charter Act in the summer
of 1931, we should have got rid of financial panics of that sort for ever.

If the Independent Liberals place
a goodly number of candidates in
the field, it will undoubtedly help
the Labour Party in any constituency but an industrial one.
In the industrial towns it will have
no real effect, and most of the Liberal candidates will lose their

deposits. In any case, I think it fair to suggest that the Industrial
North, Lancashire, and the Black
Country will return to their old
Labour allegiance; that towns like Norwich, Northampton, Nottingham, and Hull will send Labour
members back, but that the Nationalists will still hold Southampton, Plymouth, and Portsmouth, in
1929.

I see no signs of any landslide or general dissatisfaction with the Government, and now that a more consistent politician will lead the National forces there is likely to be more respect for the elasticity
of the programme from the general public. The Labour appeal will lack the force of 1929, for it will be led by the same men who were tried
as Socialists and found wanting.

It is going to be very difficult
for Mr. Clynes to say what he will do to introduce Socialism if he becomes a Cabinet Minister again
when we remember his magnificent
defence of the traditions and sagacity of the City of London in 1930.

Miss Bondfield will find it embarrassing to defend her past
record, so will Mr. E. O. Roberts
and Mr. Wedgwood Benn; but, on the other hand, as I have said
before, we are a forgiving and forgetful people and time alters
many convictions.

Undoubtedly there will be a large increase in the Labour vote,
owing to the many new voters
attaining the age of twenty-one
and coming from families where
the parents have been converted to Labour since the war from either of the two other parties. There has also been a certain amount of
new conversion to Labour among
the white-collared class, though not
among manual workers.

I cannot see in the next House of Commons any representatives of
that strange collection of ex-
Liberals and flattered Socialists
who make up the party known as National Labour; and it will be a good thing for our parliamentary system if there are not.

There is every tendency in the Labour Party to-day to break definitely with Socialism and become
another Liberal Party.

To sum up, then, we may take
it that the election will fall before unemployment figures rise with the winter months and that the issue
will be between those who like
drifting along and those who don't.
The more comfortable alternative
will win, and a Nationalist majority
of two hundred seats will be the
figure.

Then we shall all have a Happy
Christmas and a Merry New Year
unless we happen to be out of work
or idealistic or reformers or anything as unpleasant as that, but
fortunately (or unfortunately)
most of us are not built that way.

The Very Idea!

BACK TO SCHOOL

English, As She Are Spoke,
Are Dreadful

Says Master Eddie Kelly,

WE HAVE just been digesting what Miss Sawyer had to say last week
about school examinations.

Too much importance, she averred, is attached to
marks and examinations,
and the children themselves
are the worst offenders.

This is what comes of being a modern kid.

When we were a boy, confront us with an all-day sucker, and a good place where they had green apples and a hole in the fence, and our attachment for marks and examinations got nebulous
all over.

At school we were good at transitory verbs, Algebra,
on the other hand, we regarded
as a sort of mathematician's
Esperanto.

Whether A plus 2 equalled Y
minus 1 left us still mending our catapult. Our attitude towards
A and Y was, "Let 'em."

As for spelling and grammar,
we were always strong at this,
and what we can't make out is why a bloke can't spell a sentence
these days without crashing on
his atches and coming a thud on his ownwys and ebrvays. In our old times, a scholar what stretched his ear when the old dame was sprouting her plea
and listened in all he knew, why,
that kid will talk the perfectest
English and get-away with it.

Then at 1066 p.m. William the Conqueror landed in the old durt—
well, we were delighted to hear about it, so we bit a piece out of our pear, and put it back under our desk.

Our ambition at school was to spit farther than anybody else in the district. So much for ambition.

Of course, we will admit that Hongkong school-kids are in a different category. Our category
used to wander out every night
after dark and about half-an-hour later you would hear it mowling
on the tiles, or something like that.

Take luxuries, for instance.
About the only luxury we ever saw
at school was the girl's garter one
of the big boys had. We have since
thought that his mother discarded
it, and we were robbed. We bought it off him for 100 marbles
and a three weeks' mortgage on our Sunday school money.

That was a long time ago. We have had real live pairs of them
since, and now that we're getting
old we sometimes sit down and suck
our pipe and wish that we had our marbles back.

We used to have some fine times
at school. We remember, when we were at the Zomboponga district school in South Africa we had a
lion which wanted to be very much attached to us. Wherever we went, the lion was sure to go. It followed us to school one day (we were always about three laps in front of it), and we soiled it on to the teacher, who lectured to us about it.

"That, children, is a lion," she said, clinging tightly to the school
belfry.

"Yes, miss," we said, from the
adjoining roof.

"You have frequently read of the
—the rolling deep and the bounding main. That, children, is a bounding main."

"The skin of the lion—attention, Edward!—makes an excellent hearth-rug if the lion is emptied out of it."

"There is not a great deal of trade done in lions; hunters usually shoot them and leave them where they lie. Hence the term 'lion'.
Now, children, are there any
questions?"

"Yes, Miss," we shrieked, "in view of the present situation, may
we have the rest of the day off?"

"Yes," she said, "the class may dismiss."

No... the teacher was saved.
The lion got killed in the rush.
Anyhow, returning to children
and ambition, and examinations
and all that sort of thing, we would like to end by saying that if we had a son who didn't have an
entire lack of ambition at school,

"Yes, there's a farm about four miles down that has chickens and eggs and all that sort of thing."

EMPEROR'S APPROVAL

Tokyo, July 16. A sensation has been caused throughout the country by the dismissal of General Jinzaburo Mazaki, Inspector General of Military Training, one of the highest posts on the General Staff. The War Minister's action in removing General Mazaki is believed to be the first step in a determination to reassert control over the Army, particularly the Kwantung section in Manchukuo and North China.

This section has maintained a rather independent attitude since 1931, owing to the activities of the so-called Young Chique, consisting of Chiefs of Staffs and Military Attaches.

The Emperor has approved sweeping changes and promotions affecting several thousand officers. These measures aim at strengthening the unity of the Army.—Reuter.

DEATH OF MRS. BOULTON

PASSES AWAY IN HOSPITAL

Her many friends in Hongkong will learn with regret of the death of Mrs. Edith May Boulton, wife of Mr. Sydney Boulton, of the Taiako Dockyard and Engineering Company.

Mrs. Boulton celebrated her 62nd birthday last Wednesday and to-morrow is the anniversary of her marriage, twenty-seven years ago. She was admitted to Maillid Hospital for treatment following a seizure in February last and after making satisfactory recovery returned to her home at Taiako. She later had a relapse and returned to hospital where she died this morning at 10.15 a.m.

Mrs. Boulton was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Groat, of Redhill, Surrey, and received her training as a children's nurse at the London Children's Hospital. On completion of her training she took service with families in London, Paris and New York. After her return to England she went to Persia with the family of Major Napier, Charge d'Affaires, of Baghdad. She travelled to Persia by coach via Siberia. On the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war, Mrs. Boulton accompanied Major Napier and family to Tokyo, where her employer had been appointed observer on behalf of the British Government.

After returning to England Mrs. Boulton came to Hongkong with the family of Mr. W. D. Jupp, of the firm of J. D. Humphreys and Son. She again went home later and in 1908 she came back to the Colony as the wife of Mr. Sydney Boulton, then of the Taiako Sugar Refining Company, and resided at Quarry Bay.

Mrs. Boulton had at the time of her death resided at Quarry Bay longer than any other member of the Taiako community. In addition to a daughter, Miss Enid Boulton, she leaves a son, Mr. Keith Boulton, who is at present at Brighton, England.

The funeral will take place this afternoon, at the Monument at 5.30 p.m. No flowers by request, it being the desire of the family that contributions to the S.P.C.A.

LABOURS FOR PEACE

ITALY PAYS NO HEED

Paris, July 16. The Council of the League of Nations is expected to be summoned in the beginning of August to discuss the Abyssinian dispute. This intimation was given by M. Joseph Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who first visited the Quai d'Orsay and then the Abyssinian Minister.

Meanwhile, despatches from Rome indicate that Italy is rushing fighting power into Africa as fast as her transport can accommodate it.

Three hundred more fighting planes, mainly bombers, are leaving shortly for North Africa under command of General Ball, Under-Secretary for War. Italy already has 100 planes in her African colonies of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

It is understood that Signor Mussolini is counting upon his Air Force to overwhelm the Abyssinians swiftly and he will probably open his campaign against them with a mass attack in order to intimidate the populace and disorganise the Abyssinian army.—Reuter.

MORE PLANES LEAVE

Naples, July 16. The aircraft carrier Miraglia, with 24 planes and 80 airmen aboard, has left for Massawa. Two troopships left here for North African ports yesterday.

GREAT GATHERING

London, July 16. To-night 157 ships of the Royal Navy, as well as vessels of the merchant navy and fishing fleet, anchored in the review area off Spithead, were illuminated at the conclusion of the Jubilee Review by the King.

The signal for the illumination was given by a bouquet of rockets fired from the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert.

When the Royal Yacht returned to her station at the head of the fleet this afternoon, the review ended with a fly-past of 115 aeroplanes of the Fleet Air Arm.

About half a mile from the Yacht each squadron went into a steep dive from 1,500 feet and swooped down in perfect formation past the King on the bridge.

The great spectacle has drawn a huge throng of people to the shores of the mainland and the Isle of Wight and high ground overlooking the sea.

To-night Portsmouth, Southsea and other seaside towns are in carnival. To-morrow unless the weather is unfavourable, the King, in the Victoria and Albert, will lead the Fleet to sea for exercises, including tactical movements, heavy gun firing at a towed target, 8-inch gun fire at a wireless controlled target ship and anti-aircraft firing at wireless controlled "Queen Bee" aerial targets.—British Wireless.

OPIUM & HEROIN

HEAVY FINES FOR POSSESSION

Heavy fines were imposed upon two men and a widow, when they appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on various charges of possession of raw opium and heroin pills.

Li Chi, 34, pork dealer, was fined $540, on a default, three months' hard labour, when he pleaded guilty to possession of 80 taels of raw opium on bus No. 81 at Castle Peak Road near the Lanchow Prison on Monday last. Revenue Officer Brown stated that the opium was found concealed round defendant's waist.

Ninety-five taels of raw opium were found under the bed of Wan Shiu, 47, widow, at No. 22 Yen Chow Street, first floor. She stated the opium had been given to her to look after. A fine of $1,900, with the alternative of six months' hard labour, was imposed. Revenue Officer Brown said defendant produced a packet of opium from under her bed and stated that that was all, but two other packets were found by the police.

Tang Man-sheng was fined $250, or two months' hard labour, when he pleaded guilty to the possession of 498 heroin pills at Temple Street on July 9. Inspector Shannon stated that defendant's arrest was the result of a casual search in the street.

Revenue Officer Grimmett prosecuted a man, Lam Chiu, before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning on charges of the possession of 425 heroin pills, and keeping a divan at 376 Queen's Road Central, second floor. Two opium pipes and five heroin pipes were picked up. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined consecutively $500 or five months, $5 or five days and $100 or six weeks.

HOW JIRO YAMAGISHI WAS BEATEN AT WIMBLEDON

FAULTLESS TENNIS AT START

But Collapses After The Second Set

(By "Veritas")

Wimbledon, June 26.

After playing faultless tennis for two sets on a court rendered heavy by torrential rains which had fallen 24 hours earlier, Jiro Yamagishi eliminated himself from the Wimbledon championship to-day, when opposed to Gene Mako, the new American "Hope".

It would be more accurate to say that Yamagishi lost by 2-6, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 than to aver that he was beaten by that score. The better player, that is judged by standards of pure tennis, lost on the day's display.

But full credit must be given to Mako for a spirited fight against odds which included some curious umpiring decisions.

Three times in the third set Yamagishi was given the benefit of his first service delivery which, on each occasion, was clearly a fault and from which Mako was forced to make erroneous returns.

There was also an unfortunate incident in the fourth game of the second set when Yamagishi, trailing at 1-2 served what looked to be a fault and which Mako returned in the middle of the tramlines. The umpire permitted the service but gave the point against Yamagishi. The Japanese naturally protested and the play was held up a couple of minutes while the umpire talked with a linesman, after which he reversed his decision and allowed Yamagishi the point.

There was a large crowd surrounding the No. 6 court which appeared to have retained the effects of yesterday's thunderstorm more than the other courts. The majority of the spectators already knew Yamagishi, but they were anxious to get a glimpse of Mako, who, so far as English tennis enthusiasts are concerned is still something of an "Unknown".

SPECTACULAR TENNIS
For two sets Mako did nothing to impress, whereas Yamagishi, flashing out drives, drop shots, volleys and "kills" careered through 18 games in spectacular style, giving every indication of a win in straight sets.

For the first two sets the Japanese could do nothing wrong. The fact that the heavy court refused to permit the ball to rise more than a foot or so did not worry him in the least.

Using his feet and body extremely well he drove flat racket to both corners, keeping an ideal length. Whenever he essayed an advance to the net it was generally so well planned that he scored direct ace with his marvellous cross-court volley.

And while Yamagishi was pulling out winning strokes with the ease of Cochet at his best and the ferocity of Perry in his most enthusiastic moments, Mako was struggling with apparent failure to find his touch. Yamagishi's speed had him running all over the court and forcing him into wild hitting and many errors; the Japanese also worried the American with his adroit drop shots, and generally speaking had Gene fairly out-generalled.

THE METAMORPHOSIS

F. CULLEN BEATS F. J. JONES

LAWN BOWLS TIE DECIDED

By playing a steadier game than did his opponent, Fred Cullen, of the Kowloon Dock, qualified for the fourth round of the Open Singles Championship yesterday afternoon when he eliminated F. J. Jones, of the Civil Service C. C., by a margin of 21 shots to 11, on the Craigengower C. C. green.

Neither player was able to maintain a consistently high standard of bowls and, as a result, the game provided little over which to enthuse. The scoring, particularly during the first half of the game, was too one-sided to prove of interest, and the match was almost devoid of thrills, except to supporters of the two players.

Cullen's victory was due to two reasons. He was much steadier than his opponent although both were brilliant at times, and Cullen was also blessed with quite a good proportion of what was going. Many of his counters were due to luck more than to good play on his part but, as must always be expected from seasoned players, he brought off some very fine shots, during the match.

It was obvious that Jones has not yet completely recovered from his recent mishap and he was not bowling as well as he has been doing in previous matches. He was out-played by the Kowloon Dock exponent and was always trailing behind.

From a lead of three shots scored on the first two ends, Cullen went to 4-1 on the fourth, on which head Jones was lying two when the Kowloon Dock player, with a lucky wick drew first shot.

A four on the eighth end made the score 11-2 in Cullen's favour. There was nothing particularly brilliant about the count, as his four woods were stretched across the green in a straight line, the fourth shot being about four feet from the jack. Jones was short with his first, and heavy with his second while his third was wide, and with his fourth he drove in an attempt to break up the head. His delivery, however, sailed through one of the ports and touched the two woods without altering the position.

A two to Cullen on the eleventh end made the score 14-3 but then Jones staged a recovery by scoring six including a three, on the next three ends. The thirteenth end was the best of the match and saw each player lying in turn until Jones claimed the shot with his last wood. Cullen's final delivery missing by mere inches.

However, after Jones had reduced the deficit and made the score 14-9 in Cullen's favour he was not able to hold his opponent, although he managed to keep him down to singles. On the last eight ends Cullen scored seven singles while Jones registered a two on the 19th.

The match ended on the 22nd, head with Cullen qualifying by 21-11.

COUNTY CRICKET FAILURES

London, July 16.

After dismissing their opponents for 187 runs and declaring their second innings closed with a lead of 290 runs, Derbyshire had the misfortune to be beaten by Notts at Nottingham to-day by a margin of three wickets.

In their first innings Derbyshire, at one time leaders of the county championship, rattled up a total of 350 runs before they dismissed Notts for 187. Warwickshire, who are second to Yorkshire in the Championship, also suffered defeat to-day, losing by 150 runs to Leicestershire in a match at Hinckley.

The hosts compiled scores of 211 and 202 while Warwickshire replied with totals of 148 and 205. Smith was the bowler who caused all the damage for he took seven for 49 in the first innings and four for 62 in the second.

Sussex won by a comfortable margin when entertaining Worcestershire at Hove, beating their opponents by nine wickets after dismissing the visitors for 262 and then 223 runs. Sussex scored 350 in their first innings and 136 for one wicket in their second.

When Essex replied with a score of 300, Pearce scored 129. Northants made 285 in their second innings and then Essex knocked out 209 for three wickets, Cutmore being still at the wickets at the close of play with exactly 100 runs against his name.

Surrey beat Kent by eight wickets at Blackheath.

Batting first Kent made 335, Ashdown scoring 90. Surrey replied with 380. In their second innings Kent were all out for 191, of which Sunnucks made 83 and Gover took seven wickets.

Surrey hit off the 147 needed for victory for the loss of two wickets. Somerset beat Glamorganshire by seven wickets at Pontypridd.

Glamorgan winning the toss, batted first and made 199, Cameron taking five wickets for 60.

Somerset replied with 199, Mercer taking six for 72.

In their second knock the Welsh team made 225. Somerset made 146 for three, Lee contributing 90 not out.

LANCASHIRE BEATEN

Middlesex easily beat Lancashire by 247 runs at Manchester. Taking their first innings the Lancashire made 216 and in their second innings 210, Hendren having the bad luck to make 99 not out!

Lancashire batted wretchedly being dismissed in their first venture for 135, Smith taking five for 61, and in their second innings they did worse, going down for 82, G. O. Allen taking seven for 42.

Hampshire beat Gloucester by three wickets at Bristol.

Gloucestershire could only score 133 in their first innings, to which Hampshire replied with 201.

Batting a second time, Gloucestershire did a little better and made 183, but Hampshire made the necessary 117, though they lost seven wickets in the effort.

JACK PETERSEN BEATEN

WALTER NEUSEL'S GAMENESS

(By Fred Dartnell)

London, June 26.
Jack Petersen made a heroic effort to turn the tables on his German rival, Walter Neusel, in their return match at the Wembley Stadium last night—but all in vain.

Every record for a fight in this country went by the board. Despite showery weather there were between 50,000 and 60,000 spectators to see Petersen forced to retire by sheer physical weakness at the end of the tenth round.

The previous fight, last February, ended in the eleventh round, when Petersen's eye had been badly damaged.

HIS FINEST BOXING

Last night Petersen's eye went wrong at an early stage, but it was not so bad as he feared, and I think he boxed and fought with far greater success than in the other match.

He was leading well on points when his father advised him to retire, and his decision came with startling abruptness, because in the two previous rounds he had obtained a wonderful mastery over his man.

He boxed with superb skill, sending in stinging jabs and fine right-handers that had Neusel almost groggy.

Neusel's left eye was practically closed, and at the end of the ninth round, when he went to his corner, there was an obvious argument between himself and his manager.

MANAGER INTERVENES

The German looked dejected, and although one could only suspect the import of his remarks, it certainly seemed as if he wanted to retire.

The manager spoke encouragingly and pleadingly to Neusel, and he came up for the tenth round with a do-or-die expression.

He got home on Petersen's body with both hands and nearing the end a smashing right sent Petersen reeling to the ropes, for more punishment.

That was the dramatic turn of a tide that had been flowing triumphantly for the British champion, but I am convinced that it was the extra 20lb. weight which the loser had to concede to his opponent which really decided the issue.

GRIM PURSUIT

Neusel rarely let up in his dogged pursuit of the slender Welshman. He took smashing rights with disdain, and his grim assault contrasted curiously with the almost exalted fervour of Petersen.

The Welsh blood of the lower ran high, and towards the end of the fight he punctuated his punches with cries in Welsh.

After Petersen's eye had been hurt in the second round a restorative was applied to it. Petersen writhed in pain.

I noticed that afterwards, no matter how bad the eye might be, he would not permit the same treatment to be applied.

MAGNIFICENT

It was a great fight, and one that redounded highly to the credit of both men for their skill, courage, endurance and sportsmanship.

Petersen was magnificent in defeat against impossible odds.

Neusel won on his gameness.

In other contests, Ben Ford, South Africa, lost on points to Gunter Barland, Finland, and Eddie Wentstob, Canada, was disqualified for hitting Eddie Phillips, British light-heavyweight champion, during the interval after the ninth round.

BOWES FAILS IN PLOT

London, July 16.

Bowlers employed every subtlety known in cricket to dislodge H. F. Wade, the South African captain, and H. B. Cameron, vice-captain, when the two became associated during the Third Test match at Headingley, Leeds, where England had declared their second innings closed at 294 for seven wickets in an effort to force a win.

The earlier South African batsmen had all defended stubbornly but when Cameron went to the wickets he immediately enlisted proceedings with some hefty hitting, sometimes not altogether hitting the ball squarely.

Wade, however, was wide awake to the situation and refused to run easy singles.

William Bowes, the Yorkshire fast bowler, purposely gave scoring chances in order to get Cameron opposite him but Wade frustrated the plot by refusing to run, although the ball, on two separate occasions, travelled over 30 yards.

Cameron continued to hit out freely whenever he faced the bowling and was at last stunned by Ames, but too late to be of benefit to England. His dismissal was brought about just on time and no further play was possible. Cameron had made 49 while Wade's contribution was 32.

When the English captain found that his regular bowlers were unable to cause any trouble to the batsmen, Wyatt went on himself and sent down numerous full tosses which Wade allowed to pass into the wicket-keeper's hands.

Mitchell was tried and then Barber, who, with his second delivery, had Cameron stumped.

The fifth wicket had put on 83 runs in 90 minutes. Cameron hit one six and six fours in his innings of 49.

SUTCLIFFE FIRST ENGLISHMAN

BUT BEATEN BY SIEDLE

I. J. Siedle, the South African batsman, and Herbert Sutcliffe, the England and Yorkshire opening batsman, had the distinction of being the first players to reach 1,000 runs this season.

Siedle achieved the feat on Monday, June 24, in the match against Yorkshire at Sheffield when he scored 48 runs in the second innings after having knocked up 51 in the first.

Sutcliffe was only beaten by the South African by one day and became the first Englishman to perform the feat. He made one and seventeen in the same match to give him his 1,000 runs for the season.

During the season Sutcliffe has scored five centuries, including a double century against Worcestershire, while Siedle, on three occasions, passed the 100.

THIRD HAT-TRICK

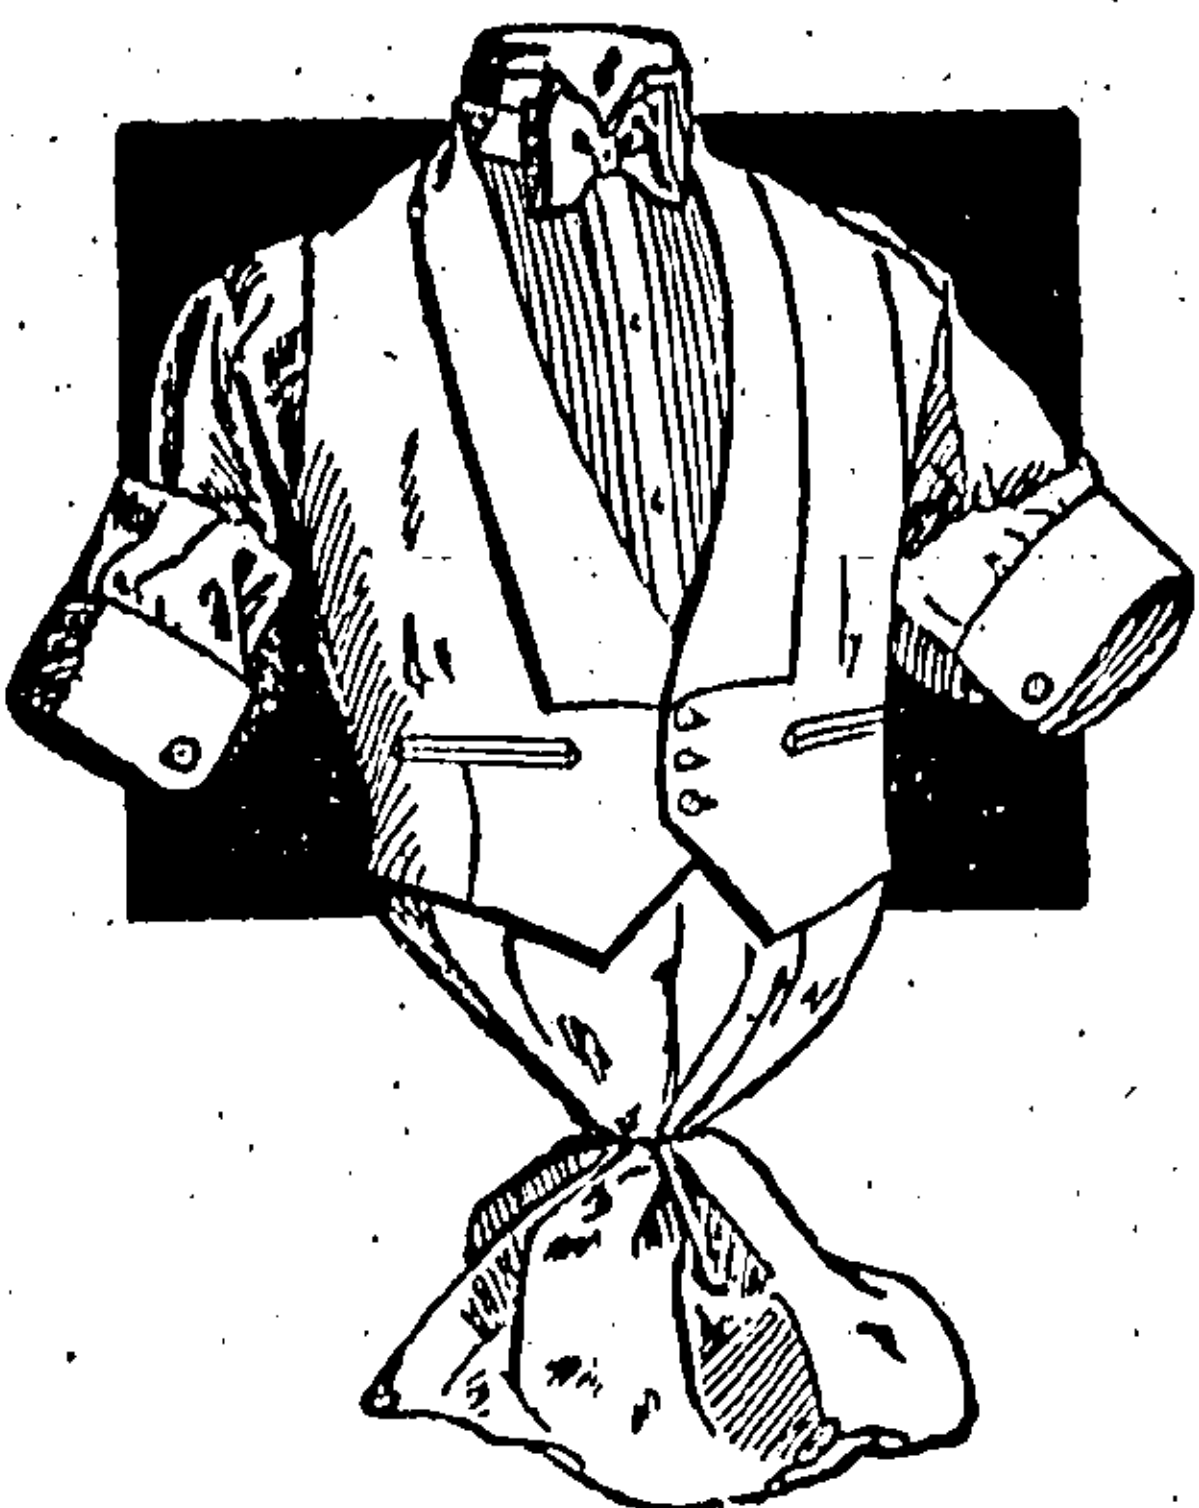

H.D. Read, of Essex, Takes Successive Wickets

The third hat-trick of the County Cricket season was done at Bristol, where H. D. Read, of Essex, got the wickets of Neale, Goddard and Smith, of Gloucestershire, with consecutive balls. Wensley (Sussex) and Gover (Surrey) are the players who did it earlier in the season.

CHAMPIONSHIPS OF LONDON

TENNIS TITLES UNDECIDED

DIVIDED

Four days of almost continuous wet weather made it a practical certainty that the London championships tournament at Queen's Club must resolve itself into a "get-as-far-as-we-can" meeting, for the entry was so large and so good that to finish all the events was, humanly and humanely, impossible. Indeed, great credit is due to the management for so nearly reaching a definite conclusion in all events. It was, naturally, unfortunate that this year there will be no singles champions of London; but with their other engagements, those who reached the semi-finals would have had too much to do, and it was therefore decided that only the semi-finals should be played, and the finals divided.

The first to reach the stage of division was Mme. Henrotin, France's No. 2, who, on a really hot morning, just got the better of Signorina Valerio, the Italian champion. This was one of those odd matches which last an hour and a half, and may be said to have been decided by a single shot. After a long first set, in which Signorina Valerio had saved a set-point at 6-5, and eventually won it at 8-6, the score went to 4—all in the second after Mme. Henrotin had led 4-2. She was love-30 in the next game, and the Italian played what looked a certain winner, but Mme. Henrotin made a lovely, if lucky, back-hand half-volley off it and won the point. This encouraging escape had such an effect that she won the next eight strokes for the set, and was never very seriously pressed in the final set. Her very safe back-hand and her perfect length were the chief factors in her success, and she showed that she could play a drop-shot as well as her opponent, which is saying a good deal.

Miss S. Noel was the only Englishwoman left in, and in the other semi-final she had to play Senorita Lizana, of Chile. This was a good game with a pathetic finish. Miss Noel, playing coolly and well, took the first set, but the Chilean went away from three all in the second, to win it. At the start of the third, however, she became very erratic, repeatedly hitting out of court, and Miss Noel reached 4-love. But from that moment, the great heat of the afternoon was too much for her. She tired rapidly; and Senorita Lizana, sensing her chance to pull the match out of the fire, piled on game after game without reply, until she had won six off the reel, and with them an extraordinary match. For the last four games Miss Noel was run to a standstill and hardly moved a point.

AN AMERICAN DUEL

There was a very big crowd to watch the two Americans, W. Allison and D. Budge, who is almost a replica of Maurice McLoughlin, without his terrifying service. He has lots of lovely shots, but makes many errors. His speedy drives, very low over the net, and of a perfect length, took him to 5-2 in the first set; but then for three games he played as badly as previously he had played well. He recovered to get ahead again at 6-5, but Allison got on terms, and was never afterwards headed, eventually taking the set at 10-8. He had been rather the better volleyer of the two, but Budge made some very spectacular smashes of the kind that the crowd loves to see. The second set was neither so close nor so good as the first; Allison got ahead and never let Budge catch him. There was very little in it; longer experience pulled Allison through.

Men's Singles. — Semi-final Round: D. N. Jones beat D. Prens, 2-6, 6-0, 6-3; W. L. Allison beat D. Budge, 10-8, 6-3. Final: Jones and Allison divided.

atrocious strokes in the first two games, and Mako, suddenly discovering that he could anticipate his opponent's short shots, and that he could worry him with some chop and slice, sprang into life and led 2-1.

Then followed the game which changed the whole trend of the match. Yamagishi, now tentative and prone to bad stroking lost his service to be led 3-1. He never again held the ascendancy.

Mako demonstrated a wonderful reserve of energy to secure three sets in a row and he also revealed an array of strokes and a knowledge of the game which one would never have suspected by his earlier form. He found that by hurrying Yamagishi into his returns the Japanese was anything but stable off the ground. So he crowded on the pace, nullifying Yamagishi's efforts to preserve his driving superiority by heavily chopping and slicing his own ground strokes.

Mako's control also improved as the match wore on, and finally it was he who had Yamagishi guessing with some beautiful drop shots and drop volleys.

Once the American had drawn level there was no stopping him. He seemed to appreciate the presence of the encouraging Donald Budge, his Davis Cup colleague, and in the final set he made all the running and won without a great deal of opposition.

SHOULD NOT HAVE LOST

Nevertheless Yamagishi should not have lost. He had the match in his pocket at the end of the second set, and it was his foolishness in easing up, concentrating too much on drop shots which eventually became obvious and easy to return, and his refusal to retain the initiative which chiefly contributed to his defeat.

Yamagishi could have won and should have won.

When I spoke to him afterwards he offered no excuses. "I ought to have won," he said, "but I seemed to lose all my confidence. At the same time I think you will agree that he (Mako) played very well indeed."

Yamagishi says he likes the English grass courts very much, and is thoroughly enjoying his stay here. After Wimbledon he is going to play in the East Coast Championships at Felixstowe.

Itch, who played for Cambridge University second string this year, said he was enjoying himself at the Varsity where he is studying Economics. He hopes to remain there for another two years.

Round: Senorita A. Lizana beat Miss S. Noel, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; Mme. S. Henrotin beat Signorina L. Valerio, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3. Final: Senorita Lizana and Mme. Henrotin divided.

SIR JOHN SIMON'S REVIEW

PROTECTION OF PUBLIC

London, July 16. In the House of Commons, the Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, touched upon a great variety of subjects in reviewing the work of the Home Office, a vote for which he recalled having last presented in the House 20 years ago. He spoke encouragingly of the development of methods of dealing with juvenile crime embodied in recent legislation and extended by the Children and Young Persons Act of 1933. The Act had strengthened the law for dealing with the neglected child; and if the problem of neglect could be adequately dealt with, the amount of juvenile delinquency would certainly be diminished.

Referring to the reorganisation of the police, Sir John Simon paid a tribute to Lord Trenchard, Chief Commissioner of Police. There were 180 separate Police Forces in England and Wales, and it was important to get close co-operation between these Forces for many purposes. A great deal was being done to enlist science on the side of crime fighting.

The Jubilee review of the Police Forces by the King next Sunday was a reminder to the British public of the reason it had to be proud of this great civil force, which had won for British police a reputation abroad, as well as at home, for coolness, courtesy and good temper.

Sir John Simon mentioned figures in the annual report of the Chief Inspector of Factories bearing on the extent of accidents among young persons, and said the

OPEN RINK TOURNEY

Holland's Four Enter Semi-Finals

The strong Kowloon Bowling Green Club four, P. T. Farrell, R. Duncan, J. C. Brown and Adam Holland (skip), advanced to the semi-finals of the Open Lawn Bowls Rink Championship when they defeated their club mates, D. W. Waterton, W. E. Hale, J. L. Tetley and M. J. Henderson (skip), by 25-17, on the Club de Recreio green yesterday afternoon.

A sharp shower fell on the 16th head and play was stopped for a few minutes. The weather cleared sufficiently to allow the game to be concluded.

Holland was outstanding among the eight players. He delivered some excellent woods and gained many shots for his side. He was well supported by Duncan and Farrell. Brown's play was patchy.

Henderson played a good game for the losers. Waterton bowled a couple of good woods, but Tetley and Hale were weak. Tetley was inclined to be a bit too heavy and sent a couple of his woods into the ditch. Holland's quartette led 7-0 on the 4th head before Henderson's rink opened their account with a three. On the 9th head, Holland's rink registered a five to lead 13-8. On the 13th head, Henderson scored a two and Holland then led 14-11. Play continued in Holland's favour and on the 19th head the score was 23-11 in his favour. A two on the next head brought the total to 25. On the last head of the game Henderson's four obtained a two.

SINGLES MATCHES
Playing on the Club de Recreio green in the Singles event yesterday, H. Overly, of the Kowloon Cricket Club, defeated his clubmate, C. J. Tacchi by 21 shots to eight on the 17th head.

On the Kowloon Bowling Green Club green, A. Macfarlane, of the Hongkong Football Club defeated P. E. Knight, of the Civil Service Cricket Club, 21-14. The game concluded on the 21st head.

SERIAL STORY

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XXIII

Michael said nothing for the space of five minutes, during which Katharine drove furiously. She drove into a side road—a sort of lane, blocked from the main road by a screen of apple trees. She had had a picnic here with the Mercer children only the week before.

She shut off the engine. After its steady hum the silence was deafening. Half a city block away the roar of steady traffic on a main artery rounded. But here there was the humming of bees in a clover field. And quiet. And a man in the seat beside her, waiting for her to speak.

"Well, what is it?"

Katharine had the queerest feeling that she had lived through this scene some time—some place—before. Perhaps in a dream. Her brows drew together in a frowning line.

"Do you think we can be seen from here?" She threw a glance back at the road from which she had come.

Michael shrugged. "No. But why?"

She plunged into her story.

"Michael, there are men after you. Down in the village. They've badges—detective shields—or something."

"Detectives?" If he were guilty of some unnamed crime, he maintained a bland air. But hadn't she heard somewhere that criminals are like that?

"Michael!" She felt a sudden fierce rage possess her. That he should be so calm, while she had rushed so madly to warn him! "Don't you understand?" she cried. "I rushed to tell you—so that you might get away."

"You did that?" His voice sounded odd—almost choked. He was staring at her strangely.

"Yes, and you must run for it," she said on a note of relief and terror, now that he understood. "You mustn't let them get you. Have you any money? If you haven't I can get some from the bank. I'll drive you over to Harmon—the thorough train stop there. You can start west."

"No matter what I've done or what I'm running away from?" he asked.

"No matter what!" She was firm about that. There was not a single question in her mind, not an argument to be met. She, who had never broken a single law in all her 20 years, now advised this man to flee. It was as simple as that.

"Thank you, Katharine."

It was the first time he had ever called her by her name in that way; naturally and simply. Her eyes, quite involuntarily, filled with tears. She turned away to hide them.

"Don't," that the old, old pain should be beginning again—way, that was unbearable. She had thought to conquer it for all time.

"You're very good to me," he said, low-voiced. His lean, brown fingers closed over her wrist. Her hand lay in his clasp quite unresistingly. "It was the least I could do," she managed to say, in the silence. "I can't tell you how it makes me feel," he went on, very gently. He had squared about now to face her. Unwillingly she lifted her eyes to his. There was a split second—and then she was in his arms, her face crushed against his shoulder, against the cloth of that worn tweed coat she knew and loved so well.

There was only this moment of weakness. Then the girl pulled herself away.

"What can we be thinking of?" she cried. "I must—we both of us must be quite mad."

"Same for the first time in months," you mean," said the man dryly. "Let's face it, Katharine."

"There's nothing to face," she said stubbornly. "I rush to tell you that you're in trouble, we both have a silly moment. That's all. You wait, Michael. I'll dash back to town and get you some money. Then I'll drive you to the train."

He had her hand again in that cool, gentle, curiously strong grip. "I'm mad about you," he said. "You've got to hear it now. I've loved of late months."

"What are you saying? You're going to marry someone else."

The words were out. She hadn't meant to say them.

"Tell me you care a little, too, Katharine." His slate-gray eyes, with the laughter lines about them, were wooing, compelling her. "I can't. It—it wouldn't be true," she lied. But her eyes, her glowing cheeks told the truth. She was in his arms again, as if unwillingly. Their lips met in that long first kiss which is the privilege of lovers. She sprang away.

"Hurry, you—have you kissed Sally Moon like that?" she demanded, panting in young fury.

"You know I haven't."

"How do I know? The whole town's talking. You're engaged to her, aren't you?"

"You are until five minutes ago—"

"You can't jilt a girl, Michael. Heathercoe. It isn't in you. I wouldn't let you, anyhow."

Her eyes blazed at him.

"Oh, wouldn't you? Engagements have been broken before this—"

His face was dark; his eyes flashed stormy lightning.

Michael's eyes held her. "You do have a little, Katharine?" Her name was like a caress on his lips.

"Do you suppose," blazed the girl, "do you imagine for one single minute I'd be here if I didn't?" Her barriers were down now. She flung the words at him as if in furious anger.

"God help me, I do love you. And you're going to marry another woman. And there are detectives after you. I would get myself into a hideous mess like this, when there are millions of fine, decent men I might care for. Thank I'm decent!"

"You don't?"

"How can you be?" she raged. "Engaged to one girl—making love to another. Running foul of the law. Why, I must be half mad to think of you, even."

"I adore you when you're like this," the man exclaimed staring down at her. "Once I thought you were so cool, and aloof but now—"

"Now? What do you think of me now, Michael Heathercoe?"

"I think you're marvellous."

Tall, fair-haired girl in white linen, sun-tanned nose in tweeds and riding boots, they faced each other almost like enemies. Katharine's breath came thick and fast; her blue eyes were wide and dark with excitement.

"Well then, if you think I'm marvellous," she taunted, "do something for me! Get away before those policemen catch you. I shouldn't like that. Nor Sally Moon either."

"I will, on one condition." His nearness was like strong wine to her. She had never felt so fiercely, pulsatingly alive. It was as if an electric current burned between them. "What's that, Michael Heathercoe?"

"That you come along with me!"

"Why, you're insane..." But she could not stare him down. "You know I can't do such a thing."

"Why not?"

She paused to consider this. There were a million reasons to advance against her going with this man. Her home, her life, her training all pointed in the other direction. And yet—and yet—the years stretched out before her in an endless procession.

"I can't," she said dully. "And you know it."

But it might be glorious, her inner self cried, to go off with him like this, without consideration or fear. Only she couldn't—the mustn't allow herself to be tempted.

He found her arms. "Very well, then. I'll go back and see these rascals, whoever they are."

"You can't do that," she cried.

He nodded. "You'll see whether I can or not."

Michael, you're cruel. How dare you make such a condition? It's not fair or right. I've given you your chance to run for it. You're throwing it away."

"It's you who force me to it," she taunted. "You're just trying me, seeing how far you can go."

"Oh, am I?" asked the man, on a note of dangerous quiet. "If you believe that, then start your car and take me back to the village. I'm ready to see those fellows, whoever they may be."

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Spencer Tracy has appeared in twenty-one pictures in four years. His average is five each year. The twenty-one are "Quicker, Millions," "Goldie," "Six Cylinder Love," "She Wanted a Millionaire," "Disorderly Conduct," "Young America," "Society Girl," "The Painted Woman," "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," "Me and My Gal," "Sky Devils," "Face in the Sky," "The Power and the Glory," "Mad Gamblers," "Looking for Trouble," "Bottom Up," "The Show-Off," "Now I'll Tell You," "Mrs. Arnold Rothstein," "Marie Galante" and "It's a Small World," which is due on Saturday at the King's Theatre. This Fox Film comedy concerns a romance that works out in a head-on collision, through a comedy of hilarious errors. Wendy Barrie, the British beauty, is Tracy's leading woman. Others in the cast are Raymond Walburn, Virginia Sale, Astrid Allwyn, Irving Bacon, Charles Selton, Nicki Foran, Belle Gault, Frank McFlynn, Sr. Frank McFlynn, Jr., Bill Gillis, Ed Brady, and Harold Minjir.

"The St. Louis Kid"

Patricia Ellis, the winsome, delicate girl of the screen has developed into a snacker. Not with her lips, but with her dainty fists. And of all persons to smack, she begins with James Cagney long noted for pushing grapes fruit into ladies' faces, and otherwise man-handling them. It all happens in Cagney's new starring production for Warner Bros. "The St. Louis Kid," which comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow. Patricia plays the leading feminine role opposite Cagney. She is the fiery little young thing who runs a village cafe and knows her way around. So when Jimmy tries to drag her from her car which he has wrecked and for which she has bawled him out, she lets him have it right on the jaw. And Jimmy, who is a battling, red-headed, home-improved truck driver, is so astounded, he promptly falls in love with the little vixen. But Jimmy is not the only one Patricia smacks in the picture. She puts up a stiff fight with a couple of gorillas who kidnapped her because she has witnessed a murder. Again she lets the hotel detective have it on the side of the face when he gets fresh. Together Jimmy and Patricia form the roughest team of film sweethearts that is coming to the screen. The picture, which is based on a story by Frederick Harbitt-Brennan, is not only screamingly funny, but is packed with exciting situations and a novel romance. Others in the cast include Allen Jenkins, Robert Barratt and Hobart Cavanaugh.

Jack Holt, the perennial favourite of motion picture fans since the early Zane Grey days of "Wanderer of the Wasteland" and "Light of the Western Stars," is again the popular heroic figure in Columbia's dramatic production, "Whirlpool," showing today at the Star Theatre. From the opening scene to the thrilling climax, the film is replete with intense dramatic interest, exciting situations and breath-taking suspense. In the role of Hankin, small-time carnival owner, Holt is the most dramatic scenes we ever photographed was being unfolded, and as long as the monks were deft and quick enough to hold the big cats at bay it was to our advantage to get the pictures. It was, after all, the purpose of our trip. At the time Holt is the excited, the unusual thing happened to the advantage of the two cinematographers. The boss bouncer climbed up on a huge tree stump and gave a signal. Immediately, the baboon mothers grabbed their babies and with big males forming the rear guard they began to vacate the village. With the leopards still pursuing, the baboons crossed a stream, escaping them, and took refuge in an adjoining forest.

"Baboon"

During the filming of their latest jungle thriller, "Baboon," now at the King's Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson helped a tribe of baboons to defend themselves against two murderous leopards. At least, they stood by ready to aid, Mrs. Johnson with gun to shoulder in case the baboons were worsted. During the battle, Johnson cranked his camera furiously. "I had a strong inclination to shoot those two killers," says Mrs. Johnson. "Martin and I both like monkeys. They're pests sometimes, but they're really lovable and friendly beasts. I could have stopped the battle at once with my powerful rifle but Martin stopped me instead. He was right. He is the expert here in shooting over photographed was being unfolded, and as long as the monks were deft and quick enough to hold the big cats at bay it was to our advantage to get the pictures. It was, after all, the purpose of our trip. At the time Holt is the excited, the unusual thing happened to the advantage of the two cinematographers. The boss bouncer climbed up on a huge tree stump and gave a signal. Immediately, the baboon mothers grabbed their babies and with big males forming the rear guard they began to vacate the village. With the leopards still pursuing, the baboons crossed a stream, escaping them, and took refuge in an adjoining forest."

"You Belong To Me"

With the effusive, brilliant and always entertaining Lee Tracy in the lead role, Helen Mack, talented emotional actress; songbird Helen Morgan, and the newest candidate for juvenile acting honours, "David Holt," aged six, in the other featured roles, Paramount's "You Belong To Me"

brings a human, sympathetic and enthralling story about three of life's brave underdogs to the screen of the Alhambra Theatre. Under the genius of Director Alfred L. Werker, who brought "House of Rothschild" to the screen, the tale of the broken-down vaudeville comic and the helpless little actress-mother, whose lives were regenerated by their love for a little boy, reveals Tracy as an actor whose actual dramatic talents are just being revealed, elevates Miss Mack to her true position among Hollywood players, and launches what promises to be a career of stardom for young Holt. He is the most personable and likable little boy the screen has shown since the advent of Jackie Cooper. Adapted for the screen by the famous writing team of Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt, from an original story by Elizabeth Alexander, the film features hit tunes written by Sam Coslow, author of the smash hit, "Cocktails for Two." In the supporting cast Helen Morgan, the famous piano-fitting blues singer, is excellent and admirable as Lee Tracy's forgiving wife, and Arthur Hodge and Lynne Overman render flawless and delightful performances.

"Baby Face Harrington"

Mickey Mouse, that forbidding challenger for supremacy in screen comedies, recognises only one competitor—Charles Butterworth. But Mickey and Charles will never cross swords because each is undisputed king of his own domain, between which there can be no trespassing. The line of demarcation, in the opinion of most observers, is the difference between physical and mental humour. Mickey is the jaunty prince of slapstick, while Charles leads the parade of "intellectual" humorists. That's the reason, critics point out, for Butterworth's success, a success clinched with his latest appearance in "Baby Face Harrington," new M-G-M comedy co-starring Una Merkel and opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. If Butterworth had been on the other side, Mickey would have gobbled him up, as he did all slapstick comedians of bygone years. It is the sub-conscious humour of Butterworth's characterizations that save him from the Mouse. Clever as Mickey is, he could never manage the subtlety of a Butterworthian faux pas, for example. Other comedians, sending this or seeing the mouse hand-writing on the wall, have fallen into line. Ted Healy gets his greatest laughs with a facial expression which no cartoon could copy. Jimmy Durante manages a gusto too unique for a pen and ink character. In "Baby Face Harrington," Butterworth is given countless opportunities to display his own inimitable brand of humour. COTTON PROCESSING TAX OUTLAWED

U.S. COURT'S RULING

Boston, July 16.
The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has, by a vote of two to one, ruled the A.A.A. cotton processing taxes unconstitutional. The ruling was given in the case of the Hoeson Mills Corporation, of New Bedford which has been suing to recover some $82,000 paid in respect of the processing taxes.

The case, which was chosen as a test case regarding the constitutionality of the A.A.A., will be appealed against by the Government in the Supreme Court in the autumn.

Meanwhile, A.A.A. officials were quick to say that the ruling would not affect the immediate process adjustment programme. Even should the Supreme Court later uphold the Boston ruling, payers of the processing taxes would be unable to recover, as the Administration is fully aware of the possibility of an adverse Supreme Court decision and is now seeking to remove all means to recover.

SOME AMENDMENTS

Amendments to the A.A.A. already passed by the House of Representatives, now the centre of a Senate dispute, would throw from the Courts all pending recovery suits—over 160 are reported to have been filed—and prevent the filing of additional suits. Another amendment would provide, should the taxes be held to be illegal, that tax rates in the future shall be fixed by Congress, instead of by Mr. Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, which, it is held, would legalise the levies.—Reuter.

A United Press message states that the Boston Court ruled that the Federal Legislature was unauthorised to regulate production which is within State control, and that there had been an improper delegation of powers to the A.A.A.

CLOSE SENATE VOTE

Washington, July 16.
The Senate voted 40 to 38 to-day in favour of retaining price-fixing, according to the provisions of the bill amending the Agriculture Administration Act.—Reuter.

TYPHOON HITS HAINAN

The typhoon which narrowly missed Hongkong last Monday was responsible for considerable damage to property and life in Hainan Islands, in Southern Kwangtung, which suffered the full force of the blow, according to Chinese messages from Hoihow. The meagre information to hand says that over twenty fishing boats are missing and several fishermen are feared to have been drowned. The typhoon lasted for about an hour, causing a great amount of destruction on shore.

Silverites Campaign

MCCARRAN RALLIES HIS FORCES

Washington, July 16.
Senator Patrick McCarran to-day called a meeting of a dozen Silverites of the Senate at which he voiced grievances against the Administration silver policies. The meeting discussed new legislation for a more direct mandate for the Administration to continue silver purchases until the price of $1.25 per ounce has been reached. The meeting also discussed specifically reframing the McCarran amendments to the permissive Silver Purchase Act and referring them to the Senate Agriculture committee where they would be assured of an immediate favourable report.

The amendments, which have been in the hands of the Banking Committee for weeks, would repeal the 50 per cent tax on silver trading profits as well as the nationalisation of silver and the right of the Secretary of the Treasury to prohibit trading in the metal.—Reuter.

WANTS REFORM

Washington, July 16.
Senator Patrick McCarran to-day introduced a bill for the repeal of the fifty per cent tax on silver transactions.

At his own request the Bill was referred to the Senate Agriculture Committee in the hopes that it would be given more favourable consideration than if it went to the Senate Banking Committee, where similar measures are already under consideration.

"A COUNTRY GIRL"

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY TO PRODUCE

As the result of various negotiations which have taken place since the annual general meeting, the Hongkong Philharmonic Society have decided to produce "A Country Girl" in January next.

This popular musical play was revived in London a short while ago, and it is interesting to record the opinion of the theatrical critic of Truth, that while it was thought to be a good performance of modern musical plays if they had two good tunes, "A Country Girl" was full of them.

Pleasant memories will be revived by such old favourites as "Under the Deodar," "Try again Johnnie," "The Rajah of Bhong," and "Pence, Pence, oh for some Pence," to mention only a few of the songs with which this play is crammed.

While the musical side of the production is to be carried out by Mr. A. B. Yule, the Committee have pleasure in stating that the Rev. Cyril Brown, Chaplain of the Missions to Seamen, has joined the Committee as Hon. Producer of the Society, and it is felt that with both the musical and production sides in such able hands a notable success will be procured.

It is hoped to commence rehearsals early in September, when all lovers of music and the theatre are requested to attend.

Pleading guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning to the possession of a still and apparatus at No. 617 Shanghai Street, third floor; possession of fermenting material; and possession of dutiable Chinese spirits, Chan Tai, 20, unemployed, was fined a total of $425 with the alternative of five months' hard labour. An order was made for the confiscation of the still and materials. Revenue Officer Humphreys appeared for the prosecution.—Reuter.

U.S. POLICY ATTACKED

SILVER PLAN DOES MUCH DAMAGE

EFFECTS SEEN IN CHINA

(Special to "Telegraph")

New York, July 16.
One hundred and fifty businessmen lunching at India House here to-day in honour of the American Economic Mission to the Far East, heard Mr. W. Cameron Forbes give a resume of the Mission's impressions.

Firstly, Mr. Forbes assailed the United States silver policy as far as its effect on China was concerned.

Secondly, he declared that the United States and Japanese trade balance was so heavily against Japan that the latter would soon find sources of supply other than the United States for the principal products, especially cotton.

Thirdly, he asserted that China was greatly in need of foreign financial assistance for rail-road construction and shipping, hence he recommended United States investments.

Fourthly, he stressed the importance of the Philippines as a market for the United States.

The Japanese Ambassador to Washington, Mr. Saito and the Chinese Minister Dr. Alfred Sze, also spoke, praising the Mission's efforts in the Far East.—United Press.

PASSENGER LIST OMISSION

SHIPPING COMPANY FINED

S. K. Go, manager of the Swei Hong Trading Company, was the defendant in a summons for a breach of the Registration of Persons Ordinance, mentioned before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The summons alleged that the defendant Company, being the owners or agents of the s.s. Apocry which arrived from Sandakan on June 5, carrying passengers not being of the Chinese race, failed to furnish to the Inspector General of Police a list in the prescribed form showing the names of such passengers within 48 hours of the arrival of the steamer.

The defendant, pleading guilty, stated that the Company had made a mistake and were very sorry. Det.-Sergeant C. Mottram, for the prosecution, stated that he understood it was the first occasion the Apocry had carried passengers. A fine of $10 was imposed.

ATTEMPT SWAMPED BY BIG VOTE

Washington, July 16.
A big House drive to force a hurried adjournment of Congress fizzled out, being smothered by a huge Democratic majority, with a vote of 259 to 86.

It was a peculiar circumstance that the attempt was initiated by a Democrat, but when the vote was called only 15 party members joined, the rest being Republicans.—Reuter.

BANKRUPTCY COURT

RECEIVING ORDER RESCINDED

The receiving order made several weeks ago, against the Tung Tak firm and its branches, the Tung Lok, the Tung Fook, the Tung Chan and the Tung Woo, June Criminal Sessions, was rescinded by the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Bankruptcy Court this morning, on the application of the Official Receiver, Mr. J. J. Hayden.

Mr. Hayden said the reason for the application was that since the order was made it had been found that there were no assets at all. In fact, the money he had in hand was insufficient to pay the costs. Mr. F. X. D'Almada, Sr., who appeared for Messrs. Arculli Bros., the petitioning creditors for the receiving order, said he had nothing against the application.

His Lordship accordingly ordered the receiving order to be rescinded.

BANKRUPT DISCHARGED

An application for discharge as a bankrupt was made by Mr. C. P. Pintos.

The Official Receiver said that since the petition was filed by the applicant, there had been no notice of opposition from the creditors. The grounds for the application were set out in the report, and as regards the creditors there were quite a number, including money-lenders. He had no sympathy with the money-lenders, as they had received more than what they lent, but as far as the ordinary and trade creditors were concerned, the matter was different. He added that he would not oppose the application.

His Lordship then decided to call out the names of the money-lenders to see if they had any opposition against the application. Six Indian money-lenders answered to the call, and in reply to His Lordship all of them said they opposed the application. The reason for their opposition, they said, was that the applicant was still in employment and was drawing a good salary.

His Lordship then informed the Official Receiver that he was willing to grant the discharge, but in view of the amount of the dividend paid and now payable, he desired not to make an absolute discharge. He would, however, grant it subject to suspension for a period of four months.

MURDER OF WAITRESS RECALLED

Chau Chung, alias Chau Chung-yu, aged 23 years, whose plea of guilty to the murder of a waitress, Chui Wai-hing, 20, of the Kong So Restaurant, was accepted at the June Criminal Sessions, was hanged at Victoria Gaol at 6 o'clock this morning in the presence of the Superintendent of Prisons, the Chief Warder and Dr. Ingram Shaw, Medical Officer of the Prison.

A formal inquest will be held at the Central Magistracy in the course of the day.

At the lower Court proceedings, it was mentioned that the girl was stabbed by accused with a knife outside 38 Upper Leascar Row where she was living. Immediately after he had committed the deed, accused stabbed himself apparently with the intention of committing suicide. Seven letters were found on accused, and in all of them there was mention of killing.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, conducted the Crown case, while Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. M. W. Lo, appeared for the accused at the Criminal Sessions.

The last man who paid the extreme penalty was Ng Lai-yuen, accused in the "Nulak Murder," who was hanged in Victoria Gaol on March 29 for the murder of Michael Pine.
